Negro Business Men Hold Their Own in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 14, 1938—Negro business men of Oklahoma are a step towards the fulfillment of the dream that Booker T. Washington laid down in 1900. Having overcome the legal roadblocks, they are working towards the building of the dream city that Negroes may live in a state of peace, order and dignity.

BROTHERHOOD WANTS VOICE IN NEW RAILROAD PROGRAM

NEW YORK CITY, Dec. 14 (AP)— Plans are being developed for the coming year to give Negroes a voice in the expression of their desires and interests in the conduct of the railroad system. The movement is in its infancy, but the Negro Brotherhood is determined to make it a reality.

PRELATE AIDS "CITIZENS OF TOMORROW"

Welcome to The Portland Observer

BY PATRICK O. DOW

Every community needs a leader who can inspire its citizens to take an active role in solving local problems. For it is the leadership of a community that makes the difference between knowledge and understanding in society. This leadership can take many forms and shapes, but the leadership that The Portland Observer has adopted is based on the belief that a community can only be strong if its citizens are willing to take an active role in solving problems.

A newspaper should not be just a source of information, but also a tool for building community. It should help to advance the cause of justice and equality, and give the public a voice in the discussion of important issues.

The Observer, in this spirit, will strive to provide a platform for the expression of diverse perspectives and viewpoints, and to foster a sense of community among its readers.

An outstanding feature of the recent Hillside Oklahoma Conference for Negro Youth was the emphasis placed on the health and education programs for the children of the area. The conference provided a forum for the discussion of these vital issues, and it is hoped that the recommendations made at the conference will be implemented in the future.

In addition to the conference on education and health, the conference also featured a series of workshops on leadership, community organization, and the role of the family in the development of young people.

The conference was attended by a large number of youth and community leaders, who were eager to learn about the latest developments in the field of youth development.

The Observer is committed to covering these important issues in the future, and we encourage our readers to participate in these discussions and take an active role in shaping the future of their community.

BROTHERHOOD WANTS VOICE IN NEW RAILROAD PROGRAM

The Observer has always been a voice for the people, and we believe that every member of our community deserves a say in the decisions that affect their lives. This is why we are committed to providing a platform for the expression of diverse perspectives and viewpoints, and to fostering a sense of community among our readers.

The Observer, in this spirit, will strive to provide a platform for the expression of diverse perspectives and viewpoints, and to foster a sense of community among our readers.

An outstanding feature of the recent Hillside Oklahoma Conference for Negro Youth was the emphasis placed on the health and education programs for the children of the area. The conference provided a forum for the discussion of these vital issues, and it is hoped that the recommendations made at the conference will be implemented in the future.

In addition to the conference on education and health, the conference also featured a series of workshops on leadership, community organization, and the role of the family in the development of young people.

The conference was attended by a large number of youth and community leaders, who were eager to learn about the latest developments in the field of youth development.

The Observer is committed to covering these important issues in the future, and we encourage our readers to participate in these discussions and take an active role in shaping the future of their community.

BROTHE
Social Acceptance

After a hard and valiant fight against a stone wall of denial, the Oregon Negro has found it impossible for the Oregon man, if he does not wish to go on with the fight, to escape the state via a Civil Rights Act. The state of Oregon is to be commended.

It seems that the white man considers the Negro his inferior, morally, culturally, and economically. The Negro is looked down upon as a race thing, a color thing, and as a person. The black man's voice is not heard, and he is not given the opportunity to speak for himself. He is looked upon as a second-class citizen, and his rights are not respected.

Somehow, the Negro has been deprived of the opportunity to learn, to grow, to develop his own talents and abilities. He has been held back by the prejudices of the white man, and he has been denied the benefits of education.

In conclusion, the Negro is a strong, capable, and intelligent person. He has the right to be treated as an equal, and he should be given the opportunity to prove his worth and to contribute to society.

The Portland Observer
Published Friday of each week at Portland, Oregon.
WILLIAM H. MCDONALD, Editor and Publisher.
The Portland Observer Office - 1504 W. Main Avenue
Portland, Oregon
Phone ED 4-5120

JOHN T. RISHER
Awarded $1,000 by the government for the system of keeping records of the navy.

Unknown Heroes Made Known

J.C. SMITH TO LAUNCH EXPANSION PROGRAM

JOHN J. SMITH TO LAUNCH EXPANSION PROGRAM

Merry Christmas

This is an argument for the censure of all the old-fashioned styles of dress. In the olden days, there were clothes made especially for children. In the families where there are children of different ages, there is a feeling of separation, and sometimes of inferiority. In the family of small children, this feeling is even more pronounced.

The Portland Observer
Published Friday of each week at Portland, Oregon.
WILLIAM H. MCDONALD, Editor and Publisher.
The Portland Observer Office - 1504 W. Main Avenue
Portland, Oregon
Phone ED 4-5120

JOHN T. RISHER
Awarded $1,000 by the government for the system of keeping records of the navy.

Unknown Heroes Made Known

J.C. SMITH TO LAUNCH EXPANSION PROGRAM

Merry Christmas

This is an argument for the censure of all the old-fashioned styles of dress. In the olden days, there were clothes made especially for children. In the families where there are children of different ages, there is a feeling of separation, and sometimes of inferiority. In the family of small children, this feeling is even more pronounced.
Footlight FLICKERS

New York, Dec. 14 (AP)—Saturday night the Apollo theater in Harlem was the center of things in the East—brightly colored, dynamically powerful and spiritedly stirring. For the second time in a matter of weeks, the Flower Show was held there. The show, which was sponsored by the Flower Show Association, Inc., was a great success.

The event featured a variety of flowers, including roses, lilies, and orchids, arranged in beautiful displays. Many of the flowers were from the New York Botanical Garden, and the show was a celebration of the beauty and diversity of nature.

The Flower Show was open to the public, and the turnout was impressive. A large crowd filled the theater, eager to see the stunning floral arrangements on display. The show was well-organized, with clear signage and a smooth flow of traffic.

The Flower Show was a great way to enjoy the beauty of flowers and to learn more about them. It was a wonderful opportunity to appreciate the artistry and hard work that goes into creating such beautiful displays. The Flower Show is definitely an event to look forward to in the future.