Portland City Council Decides

Housing and Urban Development Administrator Charles W. Fritts has agreed to the principles of the Model Cities Citizens' Planning Board's revised plan. Meetings will be given at evenings to be held at the schools in the area.

Meanwhile, the Model Cities Temporary Committee is progressing with plans for an election.

Election Set

Candidates from each of the seven school attendance areas may file as candidates for the Model Cities Citizens' Planning Board. Directions for filing will be given at meetings to be held at the schools next Tuesday evening, Feb. 15, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Deadline for filing Monday, Feb. 19.

Claim to Office

In an opinion to the board, Mayor L. L. Lewellen said, "If you want to bring in seven education areas, you should use a Plan with all the teachers and students of all schools to be a clear majority."

Board will be a clearing house for the City Council and would appoint residents to the committees.

Purpose of the Tuesday evening meetings:

1. To give further information to and ask residents to volunteer for help in their area.

2. To explain the election process to the residents.

3. To make sure all candidates are filed for the area.

The Citizens' Planning Board will be composed of 16 people, two of whom will be elected by the school residents in each attendance area. Board members will be chosen by the residents from among the candidates listed.

Vickers Says
Emphasis Must Be On Youth Activity

The Oregon Advance/TIMES goes to press weekly to serve residents of the North­east, southeast, downtown, southwest, and northwest communities. In this issue we bring you the first article by Charlotte Rutherford in last week’s is­sue, we recommend that you go back and read it. Its story of the beginning of Mankind in Africa, the development of the first civilization and the right way the exploitation of Africa was carried out by Euro­peans is an excellent founda­tion for the sermon.

Negro History Week

In this issue, the Advance/TIMES gives to our community a forum for community expression and help people become more conscious of their heritage of the black community.

Some Old Jobs

A Portland television pro­gram, “Opportunity Line,” is designed to find jobs for Negroes.

Job openings are reported and those who want the jobs call in for them.

It was good idea but -

What are the jobs?

They are the old stereotypes. Jobs for janitors, Jobs for port­ers, and many others look for their black man because the white man doesn’t want them.

We know these jobs aren’t important, but we are tired of having only low-skill or unskilled jobs offered to Negroes; tired of sitting back and seeing the better jobs offered only to the whites.

The Outsider

On January 21 the Northwest Magazine of The Oregonian did an “in depth” series of articles covering the problem of Negroes in Oregon.

From this article, you would think this was a land of milk and honey.

But from the outlook of someone who has never seen a black face up close, who has noted the color of the skin but not the features.

It told of one church’s prac­tices and its rituals and com­pletely overlooked the fact that black churches, like white churches, follow different doc­trines in accordance with their culture.

Another article on food in the stores dwelt long on pigs’ feet and mustard greens and yams and ignored the health and inferior quality of the majority of the goods.

As usual, the white man was able to overlook the truth of the Albina area. Instead of using a black man who is fa­miliar with Albina to tell the story, the magazine sent white report­ers to view the community as outsiders who saw everything from the outside.

They looked at the community as the way children view an animal in a cage at the zoo. They never look to see how they are having lots of fun in their cages. But they aren’t.

Garbage Collection

In our letters column this week, an Albina resident, Ada Davis, writes about the things we need. Among those he lists is municipal garbage collection.

This is one of the important things that should be possible for us to work for with the health authorities.

A great deal is said about problems of the housing house, but...
Roving Reporter

What the People Say

Our roving reporter met the man of the street, whom we consider the true pulse of Albina. Our question of the day was, "What Do You Think We Need Most In Albina?"

GOTTEN about us. We pay taxes and receive the least benefit from them. We can do a lot of things ourselves but we need the city's help. We also need police protection to stop some of this crime in the streets." When asked if he thought there would be trouble this summer, he said, "No, I don't think so if we can find some way to keep our trouble-makers busy, we won't have any violence this summer."

MRS. E. FERGUSON

Mrs. E. Ferguson, has been a resident of Albina for 15 years and is the mother of three children. She said, "The buildings on Williams Avenue are eyesores to the community and should be torn down. New buildings should be constructed, park facilities and a growing concern for the upkeep of our property. We should consider the future today."

LEE DENNIS

Lee Dennis lives at 524 N.E. 8th Avenue. He worked as a janitor and has been with the city for six months. He has no formal training in any skill. He has a 4th grade education and would like to continue study in a skill or a trade. He said emphatically, "We need jobs more than anything else."

ECKER BURN

Ecker Burns has been a resident of Albina for 27 years. "We need a nice clean settlement. We need housing and I mean decent housing. Our children are growing up in inadequate buildings and we need help. We need help from our city officials. They have let us down."
Athletics: Money, Power and a Dream True

This article was written by Charles Leech, a reporter for Portland's Albina district who was named all-city and all-county at Jefferson High School, became a junior college all-American and played a couple of years at Oregon State.

by CHARLES LEECH

It is an admitted fact that the Black man in America, in the South, when I realized that these things like corn meal and greens and the chicken feet and the things of that nature were being spiced, simmered and turned them into very tasty soul satisfying dishes. All the parts seemed “in tasty soul satisfying dishes.

It was even worse when I realized that the white family, the way she talks about food and a piece of cornbread in her hand, the same things our mothers and grandmothers put in it and the music, which is just as soul food as the food.

New transform yourself into the kitchen of a poor white family, the same greens, somewhat bland or taste, setting on the table the same piece of cornbread in your hand think about all these things. The same pride in the Black food, which consisted of the same pieces of meat and porridge.

We were raised on soul food.

We had soul food when we had nothing else, we take things surrounding soul food, much of the same food that we ate, whipped cream for dessert, and a piece of cornbread in your hand think about all these things. The same pride in the Black food, which consisted of the same pieces of meat and porridge.

So we grew up in a different world, where soul food comes from, nor its relation to the movement in the Black community today.

It was even worse when I realized that the white family, the way she talks about food and a piece of cornbread in her hand think about all these things.

The black race was not new to Spain and Portugal, Deseda. Gallo, a Negro, was a Negro. The black man was chosen to be a slave to escape and white man to escape and all year 'round and will have overhead heating and lights for night.

Committee's Jeff Studies Tell Concern

It will present this to be effective there must be organized a list of recommendations held at churches in the Albina area by a group of concerned white and black parents have resulted in formation of a committee called School-Community Citizen's Committee. Most of these citizens have or have had children attending Jefferson High School. Their concern grew from recent incidents of racial tension at Jefferson.

After a series of five meetings held at churches in the area, the committee has formed a list of recommendations. It will present this list to the school board, school administration, city council, police department, churches, Greater Portland Council of Churches, the news media and the community itself.

On Feb. 6, the committee shared its conclusions in the Jefferson High School auditorium. A part of this program was a presentation on "The White Problem In America" and some reflections on "Is Violence Necessary?" and "Do Riots Help." Robert Cochran, member of the committee, reported that the Negro history class is going well. He said improvements are hoped for next year.

The committee said that this course must not be an elective or separate course in high school but should be a part of included in the United States history and economics programs as well as the American Problems classes.

The committee said that through these means can this course be meaningful to the Negro community and to the white community as well.

Music Rooms Due

The Albina Arts Center will be able to install six music practice rooms as a result of a $1,500 grant from the Oregon Arts Commission.

Du Bois Was a Man Who Wanted Action NOW

By CHARLOTTE BURDEDFORD

William Edward Burghardt Du Bois was born in 1868 in Massachusetts, one of a prominent line of Dutchmen, Negroes and Frenchmen (called the Talented Tenth) who aspired to be American leaders. Although Du Bois was the black population with one principle or another.

Du Bois was a follower of Pan-Africanism but did not feel go back to Africa, the solution

Du Bois finally broke with the NAACP. He was unable to work within the group without dictating the policies of the group. He refused to compromise his principles. He realized that an independent type of segregation was not going to happen and was a good thing when it did. In his 30s Du Bois ran a series of articles in The Crisis using the word segregation in favorable terms. The NAACP could not tolerate this and so an opposition was set up. In ended with the resignation of Du Bois as both a member of the NAACP and as the editor of "The Crisis."

Du Bois lost his friends and adopted new plans as his power waned. Du Bois was not a man of war. He felt that capitalism and imperialism had put the black man and oppressed masses in the position they are in today. By this time Du Bois was in his eighties. He had been primarily a socialist all of his life and did not join the Communist Party until he was 91. He was an uncompromising man who wanted action now. Although he did do some changing, he basically kept the same standard throughout his life.

He brought black awareness to the masses although some were not necessarily attracted to him. He was unable to appeal to the masses because he was basically an individualist and an intellectualist.

Du Bois was a man of many talents. He had been credited as having been the greatest African American writer of the 20th Century. Because of these avant-garde ideas it is the opinion of this writer that this edition should be dedicated to his memory. He was born in the Army since 1963. He has been a Ph.D., and later attended the University of Berlin.

He was direct and militant. He favored immediate political and social reform. He needed his plan of attack in the high schools like Harvard and Yale (called the Talented Tenth) to eliminate the demands of immediate action without delay. He said that a black man should be a man. In the "Souls of Black Folk" he said that "many self-respect in work more than land and houses, and that people who a voluntary surrender such not work, or cease struggling for their rights are not worth fighting for it.

As Mr. Washington preaches patience, but industry and training for the masses, we must hold on our hands and strive with him, rejecting in his errors, and glorifying in his successes. As Mr. Washington called of God and of man to stand in the front of the line, as far as Mr. Washington understands the black man, North or South, does not signify the value and duty of voting, belittling the sanitating effects of education, and opposes the higher training and better wages for all. It is still the same day - so far as he, the south or the nation does this, we must be finally and firmly oppose them.

Du Bois was educated in his early years, but the prevalence of the black man's convictions him that education was not a cage and that he must then be the field as a "propaganda for the Negro Bennett entity aply described him. From 1904 to 1911 he was a member of the National Autobiography for the Socialist party but broke from there because of the racism of the party.

Du Bois organized a secret meeting of intellectuals and professionals into a group called the Niagara Movement. This group demanded the elimination of discrimination based on race. The meeting dealt with the press and speech and a recognition of the principles of human brotherhood. This last lasted only five years because of the non-acceptation of the masses and the smallness.

In 1909 a white man named Eugene Victor Gillard called a meeting of white liberals and black intellectuals, including Du Bois, who evolved into the N.A.A.C.P. With the assistance of Du Bois, the first national official branch of an all-black group, was a well-known whites. Du Bois named director of publications. The group published the book, "The Crisis" which ran as a monthly until it closed.

In 10 years' time the group became a strong and growing organization, with its papers and periodicals. Out of this next leader, he disagreed with Du Bois and distanced himself from his ideas. The group then called of the group for the current. Du Bois had been credited as having been the greatest African American writer of the 20th Century. Because of these avant-garde ideas it is the opinion of this writer that this edition should be dedicated to his memory. He was born in the Army since 1963.

Bob Cochran Takes New Job

Moving up fast is Robert Cochran, social worker in the Allen area for the Malaby Avenue Christian Church. He leaves that position next week and begins working for the Pacific Maritime Association, located in the Franklin Building in Southwest Portland.

Crisis in Black and White Community was the focal point of a discussion and debate at a youth seminar Feb. 2 through Feb. 4 at Camp Adams in Eastmoreland County.

At workshop on rat control conducted this week, a rat in a glass made it clear this is a problem that has to be handled by the city which has been trying to get along with a single rat control worker.

At a second meeting at the service center, suggestions were made to the city for control of rats. Among these suggestions was that additional funds be allotted to welfare recipients to pay for garbage removal.

The ADC mothers of the southeast area met Jan. 23 and brought with them a rat in a jar for evidence of the problem. Since this meeting, the city has shown its concern by putting two men to work in the service area.

Bob Cochran was a member of the New Hospital. The Rev. Mr. Lang is pastor of the center. Mrs. Verna Manning. The chapter is sponsored by the American Legion.

Funeral services Monday for the services.
