DAY 1 SCENARIO: THE BATTLE OF GETTYSBURG

- General Robert E. Lee’s Army of Northern Virginia (Confederate States of America) has invaded Union territory in Pennsylvania.
- The Union Army is moving in pursuit of the Army of Northern Virginia, while also attempting to protect Washington, D.C. to the southeast of Pennsylvania.
- Both forces converge to the north and west outside of the town of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania.
- Confederate forces on Day 1 = 27,000 troops
- Union forces on Day 1 = 22,000 troops
- Confederate forces outnumber Union forces on Day 1, though Union reinforcements are on the way.
- Confederates also have reinforcements on the way, though not nearly as many soldiers as the Union is bringing.
- Union reinforcements will be coming from east of Gettysburg.
- Confederate reinforcements will be coming from west of Gettysburg.

You are leading the Union Army. Your objective is to deal a crushing blow to the Army of Northern Virginia. Skirmishing has already begun to the north and west of town, and is beginning to intensify into an all-out battle. You are outnumbered and outgunned, and reinforcements are a day away.

- What ground will you choose to fight on? Why?
- What ground should be avoided at all cost? Why?