SAN FRANCISCO-Gulf—There was no such action to subpoena Billy Webb Lodge No. 1050, in an effort to prevent epidemic of polio in the area, as was noted in this corner of the building on the first floor of the Federal Building on behalf of Buel E. Moore of Portland.

Morse, chief of the Oregon Department of Health and Social Services, said that for the past 5 years he had been trying to get the federal government to fund a polio vaccine program for the area. Morse said that the virus had been found in the area and that the government had been reluctant to fund the program.

Oregon led the Pacific coast states in the first three months of 1960, with 23 per cent of its traffic down when compared with the same period last year.

The state added a 23 per cent decline in traffic duties, according to an analysis provided by the National Safety Council.

OBITUARY

Robert Pearsall, who has been director of the Portland Public Library, died suddenly Monday morning. He was 55 years old.

The Portland Post-Gazette, which has the largest circulation in the state, said that Pearsall had been a well-known and respected figure in the city for many years.

Graduates of Little Rock Schools Supported by NAACP

LITTLE ROCK, May 26—The eleven (11) Non-Operating Railroad Workers who have taken the first steps towards integration of our children's schools were honored this week in a ceremony in Little Rock.

The graduates include nine (9) African American students and two (2) white students. The ceremony was held at the Little Rock High School, where the graduates were presented with diplomas and a citation recognizing their achievement.

The NAACP, through its branch in Little Rock, has been working for several years to secure the integration of the schools. This has been a difficult task, but the graduates are an indication that progress is being made.

The ceremony was attended by representatives of the NAACP, the Little Rock school board, and other interested organizations.

The NAACP has been active in the fight for school desegregation for many years. In 1954, in Brown v. Board of Education, the Supreme Court ruled that segregation of children in public schools was unconstitutional. This decision set the stage for the integration of schools across the country.

In Little Rock, the NAACP has been working with local leaders to ensure that the court's decision is implemented. The graduates of Little Rock High School are a testament to the progress that has been made.

Pocklington Workers Union Supports Student Protests

PROCTER & GAMBLE, May 25—The Pocklington Workers Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, has expressed its support for the student protests in Little Rock.

The union's statement read: "We stand with the students and doctors who are fighting for their rights. We demand that the government end its policies of discrimination and segregation."

The Pocklington Workers Union has a long history of support for civil rights movements. In the 1960s, the union was a leader in the fight for desegregation of schools and workplaces.

The union's support for the Little Rock protests is part of its ongoing commitment to the civil rights movement. The union has a long history of fighting for workers' rights and has been a leader in the fight for racial equality.

A NEW ORGANIZING UNIT

The United States Army Recruiting Office has announced the formation of a new unit to be known as the 29th Infantry Division. The division will be composed of three infantry regiments, one cavalry regiment, and one artillery regiment.

The new unit will be headquartered in Seattle, Wash., and will have its primary mission of recruiting and training men for service in the Army.

The 29th Infantry Division will be the first unit of its kind to be formed in the Pacific Northwest, and it is expected to play an important role in the defense of the region.
