Editor's Note: The following outlines some of the points made by the National Commission on Civil Disorders. It is presented in the hope it will suggest things that are possible in Portland. The Times invites comments from readers on what they believe the report could or should mean in Portland.

Social and economic conditions in the cities in which major riots occurred in the summer of 1967 constituted a clear pattern of severe disadvantage for Negroes compared with whites... Frustrated hopes are the result of fulfilled expectations aroused by the judicial and legislative victories of the civil rights movement and the dramatic struggle for equal rights in the South.

The Black Power advocates of today consciously feel that they are the most militant group in the Negro protest movement. Yet they have retreated from a direct confrontation with American society into civil litigation and, by precluding separation, have initiated (Continued on Page 8)

Group Sets Panel Help For College

High school juniors and seniors are asked to attend a panel discussion on entering college, to be held Saturday, May 18, at 8 p.m. in the Blatt building, E. 11th Street and Sydney Avenue.

Questions of high school students about the requirements and the opportunities at college will be discussed, starting at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Maria Ross suggested the possibility of showing some of the better, newer movies in the park. Mrs. Lench replied that because of the nature of the film, there is not a chance to do this, that the only children attending these shows, rather than school, and since the movies could not be started until 10 p.m., this was too late for younger children.

Mrs. Lench said she wished to see the park service workers help the residents in finding what they want to see more families in the parks. She suggested families take bicycle rides to the parks and enjoy picnics.

Randi backwards were brought up and Miss Lench warned that the musicians union is not the only one who has been thinking along these lines, in addition to these particular meetings. They are the result of the voting Saturday with the candidates. In some cases as many as 17 candidates shared the votes. They were all in different school attendance areas.

The community picked 16 members, Mayor Terry Schum is to name 11 other members. The 27-member committee will then judge its own work, in some cases, but not in all cases, on a single vote.

They have had widely varied experiences at different universities. Dean Richardson has been a student at the center of the Oregon State System of Higher Education and was recently on an assignment in Liberia for the U. S. Department of Education. On the panel will be Francis Richardson, a graduate of the University of Oregon, Mrs. Athena Williams, community agent at Salem school, and Herbert C. McMichael, director of Portland Community College.

Miss Lench replied that it 'takes a lot of staff to train a person, and we don't have enough staff.' She said there is not even enough staff to maintain two people per playground in the city. Mrs. Harris said, 'Many of our young people have athletic ability. Can not these people be used?'

Miss Lench replied, 'It would be nice if we could. We don't have enough staff to train them.' She also said, 'I would like to get a lot of young people to take as a service to go from college and must have practical training experience. These people get first chance at the jobs.'

The People Speak

The Alliance does not have a single voice. Each person has ideas that are his own and many groups speak for others. This makes it difficult for the editor to say what its editorial board believes. It is only fair to say that the people of the Black Power movement will have to be set aside in favor of letters that talk about the city and Negroes in general.

Negroes take and one in five hospitals treat Negroes.

We, the membership of the North Portland Democratic Club, hereby take the following stand in opposition to the proposed closing of community libraries in the Peninsula Dis-

We hope our own mayor will change the face of things.

We hope our own mayor will change the face of things, and that he will be consistent in his policy. To do this, he must change the policy of the city.

We would hope that not too much

The survey approach is sell. Therefore, when the people are called upon to vote on a policy, they are asked to approve or disapprove it. This is not fair, because it is not the people who are being asked to vote, but the people who are being asked to vote for the people. The survey approach is a way of controlling the people, and it is a way of controlling the people who are controlling the people.

We agree thoroughly. It is a wonderful field for young people and one in which they can help to lessen the threat of ghetto conditions.

The “survey” approach is often used as a sales gimmick. Remember that those who are legitimately engaged in collecting survey information have been trained to use the “survey” approach to sell their products. The survey approach is a way of controlling the people, and it is a way of controlling the people who are controlling the people.

Miss Daniels Becomes Bride

Brenda Joyce Daniels became a bride of Don H. McPherson Monday, March 4. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Daniels, Indianapolis, Ind., she has been a clerk-stenographer at the Farmers Union company.

"The greatest hazard a foster family has to face," he says "is that some day they have to turn them home.

'The happy result, he says, is that the foster parents often adopt the child.

Acceptance

by RAYMOND JOE

Principal

I think I would be accepted by anyone, you would have to be just plain considerate, thoughtful, understanding and kind. Being around here in this neighborhood as long as I have and knowing so many people here in Albina, I find that there are people who won't be accepted by others simply by what they wear or how they look.

I have been a certain place where I wasn't accepted myself and experienced this. I have seen friends of mine who were turned down because of what they were wearing, and they are usually underreadable and nice. These are mostly whites, but many blacks are the same way.

You can't just judge an individual by what he's wearing or how he looks, and I think it's about time people around here in Albina and everywhere else woke up to this.

It's a problem that should be brought about, and people with morals should think about it, because it is bad for anyone. I wrote this because this is the way I feel so I'm letting it out in the open, because you can't be brothers and sisters with this going on.

Dancers Brighten Day

Sunday evening is certainly an excellent time to meet people when the weather is nice. It seems you are certain to meet nice people.

First I met eight youngsters returning from a dancing lesson at the Albina YMCA. They are all students at Holladay School with the exception of little Q.T. who was more than likely the Mary Poppins. The girls included Beverly Gay, Juatorsho Cortez, Brenda Boatright. I thanked them for their enlightening remarks on dancing and their lessons. They are all students at Holladay School and meet every Sunday. The youngsters are learning Non-profit Goodwill Industries, new life is being given to a fellow human being. Help the handicapped by giving a tax-deductible donation to Goodwill. You will feel better, by a bagful.

Gary Hames

Gary Hames ship people walk and talk. He lives with his family at 3145 N.E. Slauson. He has his family on the Albina area for approximately seven years. He thinks that Albina should have fewer slums and more helpful recreation for the youth of this area.

He said, "I think some form of recreation with spiritual values is a must for our generation." He continued with, "There is certainly a spiritual decay within the ranks of the youth today. I suppose the Model City program should eradicate the slums but only church-sponsored programs can help our spiritual decay. We need more integration in our public schools and youth opportunities should be publicized more." When asked about possible recreation this summer, Gary replied, "If there were more jobs for youth there would be less violence and crime. I am certain that spiritual help is the only solution for our problems, both white and black. I thanked Gary for these heartwarming remarks and asked him to come back.

I met two charming young ladies enjoying the warm weather. Katherine Casson, 20, and Elizabeth Handler, 16, are friends of a fellow human being. Help the handicapped by giving a tax-deductible donation to Goodwill. You will feel better, by a bagful.

On the trail were leaves, yellow and brown. The trees were sprouting their buds. We rubbed a magic lamp and his wishes came true. The information of children as well as adults, parents.

They said, "The less we know about each other, the more suspicious we are. We should face the facts and put the name where it's at." When asked about the possibility of rioting in Portland this summer, they remarked, "the more we discuss it, the more it prevails upon us. We realize there is a riot element in our society and there must be more preventive action taken than, told." They felt that the President's Committee on Urban Riots was justifiable but said however, "In some cities, we are going to have riots this summer but we are optimistic about Portland."

Thus I concluded another fine afternoon on the streets. Perhaps next week I will interview you on the streets of Albina.

Visitor Eyes Summer Plan

Jobs Available

(meaningful and successful youth opportunities)

Jobs will be the primary interest of the following Councils. Following jobs in importance are education and recreation.

McClelland said the President's Council will help the citizens in any way possible to start a program utilizing the help of federal agencies.

To plan a successful summer program, McClelland emphasized three major points. First, any youth program must have total community involvement at all levels and in all sections of the city. Secondly, young people must be involved in the planning of the program from the beginning. In the past, the city, state or agency planning the program has planned without consulting the Council, and the Council is at work now to reverse this line of thinking.

Thirdly, McClelland pointed out that a good youth program has to have the support and leadership of an effective city administration.

While in Portland, McClelland met with Mayor Terry Schrunk who expressed his interest in making Portland a good example of youth opportunity. Schrunk announced his intention to ask businessmen for their support in getting jobs for young people.

The major will be working, with Fred Markey, youth coordinator for Portland, and Glenn L. Jackson, head chairman of Public Service and Light Co. Markey was appointed to this position by the Portland Metropolitan Steering Committee and the office of the mayor. Jackson was appointed to his position by Henry Ford of the National Alliance of Business Men to head local job recruitment.

McClelland said it is important that the business community take an active and effective role in providing Portland's youth program. He said that a long range help to youth benefit could be realized by such activity.

McClelland plans to return to Portland the first of April for a longer visit to review the proposed program.

Portland will get a grant which has already been approved for $20,000 to plan the summer program here, so a program was submitted to the board and was accepted with some minor changes. It will now go to San Francisco for final approval. This program will deal with the talent to 3-year-old child group and has a built-in training plan for the parent. It is planned to include the staff, a director and two coordinators in charge of the overall program. Other positions which will be made available will be nurse, a secretary, and teacher aides. Priority for these jobs will be given to residents of the poverty area.

The Adult Literacy Program, which is the result of combining the Highland Education plan with the Full Education Program, was tabled in order to give the boards of directors at the various service centers an opportunity to endorse it.
