CHESTNUTT 47 AS END COMES

ONE OF EARLY POETS

Cleveland, O., Oct. 29-Charles W. Chestnutt, profound author of the race's literature, passed away in his home here Tuesday at the age of 47. He was the author of numerous books and short stories published in the United States and Great Britain. He was the first Negro author to publish a novel that was translated into a foreign language.

Mr. Chestnutt was born in Cleveland, Ohio, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Chestnutt. He was educated in the public schools of Cleveland and later attended the University of Chicago, where he received his degree in 1895.

He was a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the American Association of University Women, and the American Association of University Men.

Mr. Chestnutt was a colored man who wrote in the white man's manner and was a master of the pen. His writings have been widely read and enjoyed by people of all races and colors.

He died at his home in Cleveland, Ohio, where he had been residing for many years. His death is a great loss to the literary world.

In his memory, the Negro Bank Prexy shot The Advocate

The work and the struggle have done great things for this country. The conditions of the past are not to be compared to those of the present. The disposition of the people to work and to be independent is a reflection of the facts. The country reflects these facts.

But today, we must do more. We must act. We must walk the walk and talk the talk. We must be the change we wish to see in the world. We must be the change we want to see in the world. We must be the change we need to see in the world.

The work of restoration has begun. It will be long and difficult, but we must not despair. We must not give up. We must not lose heart. We must not lose sight of our goal. We must not lose sight of our destiny.

The Advocate claims to be the oldest Negro daily newspaper in the United States. It was founded in 1877 and is published weekly. The paper covers local and national news, as well as events of interest to the African American community.

The Advocate was founded by John Dewy, John Haynes Holmes, and several other prominent African American leaders of the time. The paper has been a voice for civil rights and social justice since its inception.

The Advocate was one of the first African American newspapers to publish the name of a person in a position of power or influence, and it has continued to be a leader in the fight for equality and justice.

The Advocate has been a source of inspiration for many African American leaders and activists, and it continues to be an important voice for the African American community today.
