All-Negro Float Wins First Prize

Prize Winning Float Capitalize On Beauty

The beautiful all-Negro float that won the blue ribbon as the top entry in the non-competitors field and for organization was named AFRICA'S CAPITALS. The float committee was headed by Mrs. Henryene Edwards. Miss Beverly Peterson, 1967 Miss Tan Portland runner-up, plus eight Miss Tan finalists for 1968 and Debra Leeorteen Walker representing "Future Africa" rode the float. In making the float venture a success, 2,700 bottles of "Bang-Bang Knock-Out Cleanser" donated by the Jimmy "Bang-Bang" Walker Enterprises, was sold. Total cost of the float was $3,500.

All the girls were dressed in African costume. Donald J. Bent, prize winning float builder from Pasadena, Calif., built eight floats including "Africa's Capitals" for the Grand Floral Parade and all eight won a trophy. "Africa's Capitals" was designed by Jack Stubbs. The Miss Tan Float Committee still has 800 bottles of "Bang-Bang Knock-Out Cleanser" to sell. So when a kid comes up to you and says "Want to buy a bottle of Bang-Bang Knock-Out Cleanser? It's the latest and the greatest!" buy a bottle!
When an assassin's bullet smashed into the brain of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles early last Wednesday—June 5, 1968—it muted a voice that only moments before had been heard on television throughout the land, claiming victory in the California primary elections.

The voice had always stirred ambiguous emotions. Maybe the trouble was he came on so strong that people never heard the words. The cliché was that you never loved or alienated him. Maybe that was almost true. Whatever it was, nobody seemed to hear the words he said—they were always thinking, "This is Bobby Kennedy" and their minds seemed to be already made up about him, regardless of what he said. Only one man won many of them over, as he did in California, it was as much because of his personality as his words.

On the pages that follow are photographs that shock him as he was. And—drawn from speeches and comments of his over the last few years—his own words. The words represent what he was, too, what he thought about our country and what he might have gone on to do, in better times.

The Enigma of Robert F. Kennedy

Bobby himself made joking references to the "family homestead" in upstate New York, a Lennon he acquired shortly before his successful, "carpetbagger" challenge of Republican Kenneth Keating in the senate race of 1964. There were jokes, too, about the size of Bobby's family, even as enemies and serious political analysts raised the question of a "Kennedy dynasty" that would control the White House for years to come.

And in some ways there were the trappings of family, stylistic after-image of his brother's "Camelot," where the parties and cultural affairs of his generation were held and the touch of Jacqueline, a Newport girl, was such that even Charles De Gaule was charmed.

Yet Jack and his brother were never really a part of that. The touch football games, the swimming, Bobby's mountain climbing and rapid-shoot­ ing were more in the true Kennedy style.

Ethel was the sort of woman who would take part in some unimportant but fierce vodka hockey games while several months pregnant. She was carrying her 11th child when Kennedy was shot.

In the four and a half years following the assassina­tion of his brother, Kennedy played harder, and his work style took on an urgent intensity. His speeches got a trimming, too, not in length but in the manner with which they were delivered—by the teleprompter's lights, the man-made huskiness.

As 1968 approached, eyes turned to him and people wondered if he would take on Lyndon B. Johnson in an almost unheard-of challenge of an incumbent for his party's Presidential nomination. Kennedy said no, the political pragmatist speaking.

And what about 1972? The far-away look in his eyes was convincing, for he had mentioned from time to time that he might not even be alive by that time. The "What will be, will be," he said.

Then the political climate swiftly changed. Sen. Eugene McCarthy, sharing Kennedy's disap­pointment of Johnson's Viet Nam policies, made an un­expectedly strong showing in New Hampshire's most important primary. In the Senate caucus room where his brother had announced his Presidential candidacy, Robert Kennedy's 1968 campaign began on March 16.

When one of the scores of reporters asked what his strategy would be, Kennedy said, simply, "I will go to the people."

Hours later, when critics were already muttering "opportunist" and McCarthy supporters angrily were charging Kennedy with thunder-thief, Bobby was riding in New York's St. Patrick's day parade and someone in the crowd was screaming, "I love you, Mr. President!"

Bobby always had that magnetism. Even in his days as a senator when he would visit here for nothing more spectacular than a bar association lunch, clusters of girls would hang around the side­walk outside the Sheraton-Chicago hotel, waiting patiently while adoring, often torn-up photographs in a book in a tribute ordinar­ily accorded only to rock musicians.

Such juvenile excitement usually is suffused in the corridors of power, where the voices of non-voters are often voices unheard. As the spring campaign­ing wore on, however, the vocals grew stronger and louder. Crowds would rip at his clothes, his shoes would disappear; his cufflinks were purchased in wholesale lots. There seemed to be a need for some kind of physical involvement with the man—a touch, a handshake, a sound, a song.

His hair was long and usually disheveled when the campaign started; then it was cut shorter as it grew past the point where members of the older generation might want to give it a fond pat and instead could disdain it as an appeal to hippies and radicals.

His speeches got a trimming, too, not in length but in a configuration that allowed for the fears and interests of the old and middle-aged. With a kind of wild magic, Kennedy made the middle of the road his own. And the voices that count were heard—victories in all the major primaries but Oregon's. He could provoke the hatred of conservatives and members of the Democratic establishment. He could inadvertently convince many that he was ruthless, rude, and insconsiderate.

He could excite liberals of many political spec­trums and anger others who could remember his "red-baiting" days when he accused of being a firebrand or his al­leged disregard for civil liberties during his stay in the justice department.

He could disarm a mildly hostile group with humor and boyness, or turn a conference room to ice. He could hold out hope for black people and assail the voices that preach violence and civil disruption.

But in the end, and usually disheartened when the campaign started; then it was cut shorter as it grew past the point where members of the older generation might want to give it a fond pat and instead could disdain it as an appeal to hippies and radicals.

Bobby was shot by a white man, his color perhaps irrelevant this time—but there was never a doubt that somewhere there was a white man who shot him. His color was irrelevant this time—but there was never a doubt that somewhere there was a white man who shot him.

The charges that he used connections and nepotism, that he would rule from a concrete castle, are Negroes.

It was the sort of statement Robert Francis Ken­dedy could make in a political year. It was the sort of statement that would outrage political enemies, those who would regard it as an un­true use of emotion and two tragic deaths for political gain.

But there was never a doubt that somewhere beneath the boyish, mature, physical, intellectual, ruthless, compassionate, Byzantine, fatalistic image of Bobby Kennedy there has always been the un­faded memory of his older brother, John.

Was his statement—that so enraging the political pros, so galvanized with hope many members of the black community—a calculated play for votes, or the emotional outburst of a man who had experienced so many tragedies, or simply a quiet plea for an end to violence?

For all of Kennedy's apparent strides toward the ultimate seat of world political power—the White House—close associates had been noting in recent years a certain detachment, a capitulation to the fates. At first, it was all there, a bold march of ambition that any "pva" could see. A jump from the University of Virginia to the Justice department in 1951, investigator for the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy in 1963, a terrorism prosecutor of labor racketeers, an efficient attorney generalship.

"I can't see that it's wrong to give him a little legal experience before he goes out to practice law," Sen. F. Kennedy said.

Bobby Kennedy was appointed to the attorney generalship. He would not be shot by a white man, too. "They were quoting something Bobby Kennedy had said in Indiana, breaking the news of Martin Luther King's death, predicting supporters, most Negroes.

OLIVER GILL, JR., CHARGED IN SLAYING

Mrs. Benjamin (Gloria) Kusney was shot in the chest through a window of her home and died on arrival at Emanuel Hospital, allegedly by Oliver Gill, Jr., who threatened to shoot the lock of the door in order to get his wife Minnie out of the house. After going home and obtaining his rifle he is alleged to have fired across the street the bullet which struck and killed Mrs. Kusney. At home at the time of the shooting were Mr. Kusney and their eight children and Minnie Gill, Oliver Gill, Jr.'s wife. Gill was taken into custody Saturday night and charged with the killing Monday.

POSITIVE REPRESENTATION

THE FIVE CANDIDATES WHO WERE NEGRO IN THE PAST PRIMARY ELECTION FARED WELL. EACH RECEIVED A "GOOD" VOTE AND EACH CAN BE PROUD OF THE PEOPLE WHO TRUSTED THEIR ABILITY.

POLITICAL PRO

SCHOOL BOARD VOTE

AL BATISTE SHOULD HAVE WON THE SCHOOL BOARD. THIS WAS THE ELECTION FOR HIM. BUT THE ENDORSEMENT OF THE CITIZENS SCHOOL COMMITTEE DISILLUSIONED HIM. WHILE THE THREE WHO GOT THE VOTES WERE WORKING ESPECIALLY FOR THEM, WHICH SEEMED ALL RIGHT.

SHAG THOMAS

SHAG THOMAS HAD WHAT IT TAKES TO BE A POLITICIAN. NAME FAMILIARITY, POPULARITY AND ABILITY. HOWEVER, HIS ODDS WERE GREAT. HIS PITCH WAS GOOD AND HIS POLITICAL TIES WERE GOOD. HIS ASSOCIATION WITH OLIVER SMITH OPENED UP MANY CHANNELS FOR SOME OTHER RACE IN THE FUTURE.

NOTHING BEATS A FAILURE BUT A TRY

MR. VANN AND MR. MCCOY REALLY HAD NO CHANCE AND THEY KNEW IT. SO DID ALL OF THE OTHER POLITICIANS. NO ONE CAMPAIGNED AGAINST THEM TO GIVE THEM A FALSE HOPE AND PUBLICITY AND A GLIMPSE OF POLITICS.

POSITIVE THINKING

NOW MR. SMITH HAS ANNOUNCED AND ALWAYS SAID: "I WILL RUN AS LONG AS THEY PRINT THE BALLOT OR UNTIL THE GOOD LORD CALLS ME." SO WITH THIS POSITIVE APPROACH AND DESIRE THE NEGRO POLITICIANS AND THE PEOPLE SHOULD FORM A COMMITTEE OF ONE, AND, WHETHER THEY LIKE HIM OR NOT, START WHERE SOME ONE CAN WIN AND MORE THAN LIKELY THE WINNER WILL BE OLIVER E. SMITH. HE WILL RUN AND GIVE POSITIVE REPRESENTATION TO NORTH PORTLAND AND ALL THE PEOPLE IN IT.

POWER OF THE POLICE

The United States Supreme Court upheld power of the police to stop suspicious-looking people on the street and frisk them for weapons. The decision by the Supreme Court passed 8 to 1. Two men acting suspicious in front of a store in Detroit were searched by policemen and found to be carrying guns. They were arrested and convicted of carrying concealed weapons.

Briefs supporting their appeals were filed by the N.A.A.C.P. and American Civil Liberties Union. They contended that any physical restraint of an individual is an arrest and may be made only on probable cause to believe his guilt of an offense. Chief Justice Earl Warren who wrote the Supreme Court's opinion noted that the court was dealing with a sensitive area of police activities, but he said "A proper balance must be struck." Chief Justice Warren noted F.B.I. reports that 335 law enforcement officers were killed on duty from 1960-1966 and that 25,000 assaults of police officers in 1966 occurred. The Court's decision will give much encouragement to officers across the country.

While there is no "stop and frisk" law here in Oregon the court generally holds that it is lawful for a policeman to stop persons acting suspicious in public places and to question them. It is also lawful for any Oregon policeman to frisk a suspect if the policeman believes he is in danger of an attack. The court here generally holds if a pistol is found in a search, the gun cannot be used as evidence against the suspect. The "stop and frisk" bill would have permitted police to persecute pistol toters. The decision by the Supreme Court, we hope, accomplishes the same purpose.
The Defender takes great pride in reporting that the Superintendent of Banks of the State of Oregon has approved an application to organize and operate a new State Bank in Portland, the name of which will be BANK OF FINANCE, and it will be located at the intersection of N. E. Mallory Avenue and Kilingsworth Street. The bank's authorized capital stock will be $400,000, having a par value of $5.00 per share, and $100,000 established for a Guarantee Fund, and $100,000 allocated to surplus; which is a total authorized capital of $600,000 divided into 80,000 shares to be sold for $7.50 per share.

TEMPORARY OFFICE

The temporary office location is 517 N. E. Kilingsworth, just off Union Avenue, telephone number 298-6188.

Onie B. Granville, President, will be in charge of the temporary office; if there are any questions please contact Mr. Granville.

Joint Advisory Board Elects New Officers:
Mr. John Jenkins, 1233 N. E. Mason, was elected Chairman of the Joint Advisory Board of the Albina Child Care Services.

Miss Mary C. Rowland was chosen vice chairman; Mrs. Carole Horsley was elected secretary.

One half of the members of the Joint Advisory Board are parents of youngsters served by the program. The remainder of the Advisory Board is composed of representatives of each of the Pockets of Poverty, the sponsoring agencies and the community at large.

The Joint Advisory Board is responsible for the conduct of the program, the continued improvement of the program, and serving as a liaison with other organizations.

Albina Child Care Services is a full day program of care of youngsters from infancy until school age. The Volunteers of America sponsor the portion of the program which cares for some 65 youngsters in individual home situations. St. Vincent de Paul sponsors the portion of the program which cares for some 120 youngsters at the Albina Child Development Center at 58 N. E. Morris.

The total program is financed by the sponsoring agencies in conjunction with The Office of Economic Opportunity, through the Portland Metropolitan Steering Committee. Currently there is discussion concerning expanding the services of Albina Child Care to include more youngsters and a wider area of the city.

Albina Child Care Services Seeks New Director:
Mr. Sam. Granato, Director of the Albina Child Care Services, will be leaving on Friday, June 14, 1968 to take a position in the East. Mr. Granato has served as Director since July 1967, during which time he assisted in getting the program underway and directed its establishment.

Albina Child Care Services currently provides care for almost 200 youngsters both in family day care homes and at the Albina Child Development Center at 58 N. E. Morris.

This full-time, all-day type of care was the top priority in the 51st of needs drawn up by concerned citizens in December 1964. This dream of the first committee of the Albina Citizens War on Poverty Committee became a reality in the fall of 1967, when the Services began operation.

Albina Child Care Services is jointly sponsored by St. Vincent de Paul, which is responsible for the Albina Child Development Center at 48 N. E. Morris, which houses over 100 youngsters 3 to 6 years old. The Volunteers of America sponsor the family day care program, which primarily cares for children from infancy to 3 years of age.

Currently there is much discussion about the need for even more day care, and the expansion of this program to include more youngsters and a wider area of the city.

The Joint Advisory Board of the Albina Child Care Services under the leadership of Mr. John Jenkins, as Chairman, is currently seeking a new Director for the project. All those who are interested and feel qualified to direct a program of this type are urged to apply. In keeping with War on Poverty regulations and standards experience may be substituted for educational qualifications. Applications for Director are available from Mr. Barbara Owens, 1323 N. E. 7th.

There are a number of other positions currently open or soon to be open at the Albina Child Care Services: Child Care Supervision; Nurse, and various aide positions. Anyone interested in these positions should contact the Child Care Services office at 58 N. E. Morris St. Again, in keeping with War on Poverty regulations, there is concern for advancement and experience may be substituted for educational requirements.

"As far back as I can remember, politics was taken with special fervor and relish in our house. We came by it naturally on both sides of our family. Our Grandfather Fitzgerald—"Honey Fitz"—who had been a Congressman and Mayor of Boston, talked frequently with us about his colorful career which epitomized the rise of the Irish politician. But it was more than that. I can hardly remember a meal time when the conversation was not dominated by what Franklin D. Roosevelt was doing or what was happening around the world." —Speech, 1964

"Whenever I receive an award or am present when other people receive an award it takes me back to my days in high school and in college... You know, when the graduating class gave the award for the best athlete and for the best scholarship and for the person who was best in Latin, and best in Greek, and who wrote the best composition—I received a prize for being the fellow with the fifth best sense of humor in my graduating class." —1962

"People are making too much of my so-called conversion to liberalism... But liberals had an emotional thing about me, maybe because of Joseph McCarthy, maybe because of my Roman Catholicism, maybe because of my fights with Humphrey and Stevenson. I'm not that different now. I know more now and I stay up late at night more often thinking about these problems. But I was never all that ruthless, as the liberals said." —May, 1966

"Few men are willing to brave the disapproval of their fellows, the censure of their colleagues, the wrath of their society. Moral courage is a rarer commodity than bravery in battle or great intelligence. Yet it is the one essential, vital quality for those who seek to change a world which yields most painfully to change... I believe that in this generation those with the courage to enter the moral conflict will find themselves with companions in every corner of the world." —1966

Spanish Method For Fish

Fish and seafood of all kinds, shellfish included, are featured prominently in the everyday menu planning of the citizenry of Spain. So it is no wonder that Spaniards have gained great renown for their fish cookery. Many West Coast-ers are equally fond of fish and shellfish and appreciate them with a Spanish flair. So without further ado, we pass along this simple recipe for Spanish Sauced Fish Fillets.

FISH FILLETS

- 2 pounds fresh or frozen fish fillets of your choice
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 3 tablespoons virgin olive oil or butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 cups canned tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- dash of pepper
- 1 whole bay leaf
- 1 clove

Cut fish fillets into serving-size pieces; place in a single layer in a well-greased baking pan or flat casserole.

Cook onion and chopped green pepper in olive oil as the Spanish would, or in butter, until tender. Blend in flour; add canned tomatoes and seasonings; cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove bay leaf and clove.

Cover fish with sauce. Bake in moderate, 350 degree, oven 25 to 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily with a fork. Recipe makes 6 servings.

These Are Two Good Ways for Those Berries

Strawberries with Marmalade Cream

To make 6 servings, beat together until smooth 1 (8-ounce) package of softened cream cheese and 1/4 cup of heavy cream. Stir in 1/2 cup of bitter orange marmalade. Chill. Serve with 1 quart of fresh strawberries, sliced.

Frosted Berries

Frosted strawberries make a pretty, fresh and simple garnish for summer desserts and beverages. They’re delicious, too, as a confection. To garnish a 6-serving recipe, use 1 pint of fresh strawberries that are completely dry. Hold each by stem or wooden pick. Brush with 1 egg white, beaten until foamy. Sprinkle lightly with granulated sugar. Dry on rack.

SWINGING SOUL BAND

That swinging soul band who played at the Monroe Senior Prom performed at the Teen Age Fair in the Colliseum last Saturday evening. The Royal Tans is the name of the band that turned out to be a great success.

KENNEDY

On Sunday a March was given in honor of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy. Robert Kennedy talked with Negroes in Dawson Park and gave a wonderful speech during his stay in Portland before his death. It was a great shock to many people; and a great loss, when the horrible tragedy was learned, for this man had done so much for this country. Sunday marchers marked from N. Williams to Alberta, where a memorial service was given at St. Andrews church.

WEDDING

Shirley Johnson, a former student of Monroe High School, will be joining hand to hand with Raymond Richardson. The wedding date will be on the 22nd of June, at St. Missionary Baptist Church. A church reception will follow.

Willie Stoudamire, all-round athlete, has been selected as one of ten outstanding Portland area high school graduates by The Press weekly newspaper.

TEEN AGE FAIR

Sly and the Family Stone performed Sunday evening at the Teen-Age Fair, in the Colliseum. The entertainers gave a great performance and gathered a crowd full of swinging teen-agers.

"We have a responsibility to the victims of crime and violence. It is a responsibility to think not only of our own convenience but of the tragedy of sudden death. It is a responsibility to put away childish things—to make the possession and use of firearms a matter undertaken by serious people who will use them with the restraint and maturity that their dangerous nature deserves—and demands. It is past time that we wipe this stain of violence from our land."

Congressional Record, 1st session, 89th Congress

"It is from numberless acts of courage and belief that human history is shaped. Each time a man stands up for an ideal, or acts to improve the lot of others, or strikes out against injustice, he sends forth a tiny ripple of hope, and crossing each other from a million different centers of energy and daring, those ripples build a current which can sweep down the mightiest walls of oppression and resistance."

—1966

"Full and informing debate rests upon moderation and mutual indulgence. Men must seek acceptance of their views thru reason, and not thru intimidation; thru argument, and not thru accusation. We are all patriots here. We are all defenders of freedom. We are all Americans. To attack the motives of those who express concern about our present course—to challenge their very right to speak freely—is to strike at the foundations of the democratic process which our fellow citizens, even today, are dying in order to protect."

—1966
The Conquest Of Violence

It is good that the spontaneous response of the American people to the murder of Robert Kennedy should be one of shame and guilt over the violence that is disfiguring life in the United States.

Out of such revulsion and self-searching may come the knowledge and resolve to deal fully with all the causes and forms of savagery and brutality that have been rippling at the American vitals and that have cut so heavily into the meaning of life in the United States.

But the American people will misread the meaning of Robert Kennedy's death if they view it solely as a self-contained American tragedy. The tragedy is the result of the spillover of violence and volatile tensions from one part of the world to another.

In a larger sense, it is the tragedy of a world that somehow became one before it became whole. All the struggles, strivings, hostilities, and hopes of a globe teeming with human beings have become fused inside a single arena.

To live in the latter half of the twentieth century is to live at a time when national boundaries are inseparable as lines of separation or protection. All men, whatever their faces or moods, rub together in a way that makes for limitless upheaval or promise.

We are at the end of the age of purely national or even regional problems. Combustibles for setting the globe afire exist everywhere—whether in the interior of Africa or the lowlands of Asia or the seabed of civilization in the Mediterranean.

No American President—indeed, no man who aspires to the Presidency—can stand aloof from those problems or the tensions they engender. He is expected to make his position known. His views have the power to change history, whether or not they officially represent United States policy.

And so the White House and its aspirants are a magnet for the arguments or appeal of governments and their citizens everywhere. Also, a target for partisans whose rage and frustration can be attached to triggers.

The mood of violence is not peculiar to America. Throughout the entire world people are caught up in convulsive change. The old historical rhythms are hardly recognizable. Issues that formerly took a century or more to come to a boil are in constant eruption. Everything is being bunched up—time, space, nations, people, issues. And everything has a fuse attached to it.

The habits of nations, always variable, have become starkly irrational. Nothing made by nations today is in greater abundance than destructive force. Nations have in reserve the equivalent of thirty thousand pounds of TNT for every man, woman, and child in the world. They do not have in reserve thirty thousand pounds of food or medicines or clothes or books for every person in the world.

Just a single hydrogen bomb now contains more explosive power than all the bombs dropped from the air during the Second World War put together. Thousands of such bombs are now ready for instant use.

Day by day the mountain of weapons grows faster and higher. Even if only one fourth of these weapons were detonated, the planet could be poisoned and pulverized beyond the ability of man to cleanse or repair.

The assumption that the human race is secure because such power is in the hands of governments is a not a safe assumption. Governments are run by men. There is no way of making the seats of power throughout the world open only to those men who have deep convictions about the preciousness of life and who can exercise limitless restraint in the face of limitless provocation or opportunity.

Violence in our world is interconnected. It is chain reactive. It runs from the small to the large and back again, from a half-crazed individual with a handgun to space armadas with explosives that can incinerate whole cities, from men who have contempt for law to nations that refuse even to consider the establishment of law in the world.

It is important to protect men against assassination. It is also important to protect civilization against assassination. It is important to protect individuals against readily available handguns. It is also important to protect three billion people against readily available nuclear explosives carried by cruising spacecrafts or missiles.

The consequences of anarchy in the streets are serious. The consequences of anarchy among nations are catastrophic.

The control of violence, therefore, in the immediate neighborhood or in the world at large, depends on the quality of the men who are willing to lend themselves to it. This has always been the case. Human progress inevitably depends on enough men defining the values they want to live by and then backing up those standards by wise and appropriate means.

If enough men care deeply about each other, they can begin to reconstruct their world in a way that will be congenial to human life. It will not be easy—changing the dominant atmosphere of violence; reaching the men who govern television, movies, magazines, newspapers, and books and convincing them of the direct connection between what they are doing and the shaping of life in our society; persuading legislators that guns can kill; creating a groundwork of support all over the world for upgrading the United Nations to a level where it can bring weapons of holocaust under control, and, what is even more important, controlling the basic causes of war itself.

It is not easy, but it is necessary. Those who feel strongly enough about life and its possibilities will find a way of doing what is necessary.

—Norman Cousins
