PDX Journeys: Studying and Living in the US, Low-Intermediate Novel and Textbook for University ESL Students

Amber Bliss Calderón

Portland State University

2016
About the Book
Each unit begins with a chapter of fiction about a teacher and students in one ESL class. Reading comprehension and reading skills exercises follow. Prefix and suffix vocabulary-focus exercises are included. Academic Word List (through sublist 2) vocabulary exercises help students build a strong foundation in both receptive and productive knowledge. The following chapters in each unit expand on unit themes through non-fiction articles focusing on academic preparation, international experiences, and cultural adjustment. Vocabulary is repeated and comprehension and reading skills are further practiced.

About the Author
Amber Bliss Calderón is a Senior Instructor I in the Intensive English Language Program at Portland State University. She earned her MA in TESOL from Portland State University in 2004. Her areas of interest include teaching reading, creative writing, and student experiences. She has developed curriculum for several communication and culture experience programs for the IELP. She enjoys teaching reading and makes it a goal to turn non-readers into readers by making reading a fun and exciting way to learn.
Unit 1: Academic Expectations

Chapter 1: Stephanie’s Story
You will read a story about Stephanie, an ESL teacher. You will read stories about Stephanie’s students in later chapters.

Chapter 2: IELP Expectations of Students
You will read an article about some of the requirements for IELP students.

Chapter 3: The Pros and Cons of Studying Abroad
You will read about international students and make lists of pros and cons about studying abroad.

Vocabulary: Academic Word List
Below are two lists of words from the Academic Word List. These words are important to know because they are frequently used in academic settings (university textbooks, lectures, etc.).

You need to know the parts of speech, word forms, and definition of all of the words. Additionally, you need to know how to use the bolded words in the right-hand list in sentences. Study these words carefully. Your teacher will introduce different ways to study vocabulary. Try each one until you find your preferred method or methods.

Receptive Knowledge of Vocabulary: This means you understand these words when you read them and hear them.
*These words are italicized in the story.

Productive Knowledge of Vocabulary: This means you correctly use these words in your own writing and speaking.
*These words are bolded and underlined in the story.

You need to recognize and understand these words when you see them. As you read textbooks for your other classes, highlight these words. Ask yourself these things:

- What part of speech is the word, and how is it used in the sentence?
- Is this word used multiple times? Is it important?
- What other words often occur near this word?
- Can I replace this word with a synonym and still understand the sentence?
- Can I recognize other word forms of this word?

You need to know and understand the words above when you find them in a reading. You should also begin to use these words in your conversations and writing. Study these words, look for them, listen for them, and ask yourself these things:

- What part of speech is the word, and how is it used in the sentence?
- How can I use this word in speaking? In writing?
- What other words often occur near this word?
- Can I replace a synonym with this word?
- Can I recognize and use other word forms of this word?
Exercise 3
Pre-reading Questions

1. Think back to your first ESL class in the US.
   a. What expectations (hopes) did you have about your classes?
   b. What expectations did you have about homework?
   c. What expectations did you have about your teachers?

2. What expectations do you think teachers have about their classes or students?

3. Do you think teacher and student expectations are similar or different?
Part 2: Read

Stephanie’s Story

A. Stephanie opened her eyes. Morning came too soon. She stretched and turned off the alarm on her phone. She rubbed her head. She felt a headache starting behind her eyes. Her phone chirped\(^1\), alerting her to a text message.

READY FOR THIS?

It was from Sara, her best friend at work. Sara worked in the office, processing all the student applications.

Stephanie was a teacher. September arrived far too quickly, she thought. She was in Mexico all summer, traveling, thinking, and deciding. Did she still want to be a teacher? Did she still want to live in Portland? Did she still want to marry Steven? Well, she didn’t know the answers to all of those questions yet. She didn’t know if she still wanted to be a teacher or live in Portland, but she knew she didn’t want to marry Steven. When she returned home two weeks earlier, she broke up with him and moved on with part of her life.

She still needed to decide if she was going to stay in town or move away, keep teaching or change careers\(^2\).

Well, no decisions were going to be made today. She rolled over and got out of bed.

B. “Sara! This is unfair!”

“I know. I’m so sorry,” Sara whispered.

Stephanie was very angry. She was gone only three months and returned to work to find that the university had redistributed office spaces. The Intensive English Language Program now had to share office space with overflow\(^3\) from the World Languages Department. Since the university expanded several departments that brought a lot of donations\(^4\) to the school, other less-profitable departments were required to combine office space.

Stephanie walked through the suite to her tiny office that now held two desks. Her books were stacked randomly on her desk. Her small bookshelf was gone. An old, tall, metal bookshelf was in its place. Grey paint was peeling off of it, making it better suited for a junkyard than a university office. All her wall decorations and artwork were piled on the floor next to her desk.

Gritting her teeth, Stephanie walked in and set her bag down. She decided to get to work planning her classes. She wasn’t usually rude\(^5\), but she couldn’t bring herself to greet her new officemate who didn’t even turn his head when she walked in. Well, if he couldn’t be bothered to say hello, neither could she!

C.

Stephanie walked into the classroom. There were sixteen students on her class list, twelve countries represented, and at least eight languages. She looked around the room. Only half of the students were present. She checked her watch; there were still three minutes until the class started. She walked to the front and started unpacking her bag.

She wrote on the board:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Stephanie Green: Academic Expectations:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Reading 4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1. Attendance</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. Syllabus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. Classroom expectations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. Diagnostic test</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. Homework assignment</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

She heard an audible\(^6\) sigh from the students seated behind her as she wrote number five, and she stopped herself from turning around and lecturing these new students about academic expectations. She should ease into it, give them time to get used to her and used to a new system. She tried not to be annoyed that they expected it to be easy. She was starting to think that she should walk away from teaching and find a new career. However, she should not judge them too soon. She took a deep breath and turned around with a smile on her face.

D.

As Stephanie walked toward her office, she saw the door wide open. She was surprised at first, but she remembered that she now had an officemate. However, as she looked inside, she saw that no one was there. She felt frustrated and angry. First, her officemate ignored her when she came in before class. Second, he left the door wide open. Thieves often took advantage of opportunities like this. The campus was open, meaning anyone could walk into any building at any time, enter any office, and leave with any item. Stephanie personally knew three people on campus who had money or other items stolen from their offices.

She decided that she needed to talk to this officemate immediately. She sat down at her desk to start an email. Before she wrote one word, she realized that she should stop. She felt angry, but her wallet was still in her purse. Nothing was missing. She decided that since emails

\(^6\) clear, loud

were impersonal and could be misinterpreted, she should wait until she could talk to her officemate in person. With that decided, she started grading the diagnostic tests.

It was going to be a long year. She really needed to change her attitude about her job. Maybe making a pros and cons list would be a good way to help her decide about her future. She set the diagnostic tests aside and got a piece of paper out of the recycle bin and started writing.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Pros</th>
<th>Cons</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1. good hours</td>
<td>1. tiring</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2. interesting</td>
<td>2. a lot of work / weekends grading papers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3. time off / vacations</td>
<td>3. feel unappreciated</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4. helping people</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>5. rewarding</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6. friends and coworkers</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7. always learning</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

There were seven pros on her list. There were only three cons. With only three drawbacks that she could think of, she decided then and there to put away her doubts and just focus on the things that she liked about her job. She could deal with everything else later.

E.

Stephanie raced into the classroom on the second day of class just seconds before it was time to start. It was not the best way to model good academic behavior, but there was no way to avoid it. She was walking out of her office when her officemate was coming in. She knew it might be her only opportunity to talk to him this week.

She stuck out her hand for a handshake. “Hi. I’m your officemate, Stephanie Green. It’s nice to meet you finally. I wanted to talk to you about closing and locking the office door, but I have to run to class now.” Stephanie was talking rapidly. She barely looked at him until she noticed he was waving his hands at her and pointing to his ear.

He spoke softly, “Slow down please. I can read lips.”

She stopped, shocked. She had not bothered to find out any information about her officemate. She was so upset about sharing an office, she didn’t even learn his name, what he taught, or anything at all about him. It never occurred to her that he was deaf. She felt like a jerk and a fool. She felt herself blush with shame.

She started over. “It’s nice to meet you. I’m Stephanie.” Luckily, she knew how to sign the letters of her name: S-T-E-P-H-A-N-I-E. She spoke slowly and clearly again, “I have to run to class. Can we talk later?”

He smiled. “My name is Marc Smith,” he said in a soft, slightly unclear voice while signing at the same time.

They shook hands. They smiled. Stephanie still felt embarrassed, but she also felt relieved. She now knew why Marc hadn’t acknowledged her when she had been in her office the previous day. If she was honest with herself, she had kind of crept into the office, trying not to make any noise, not actually wanting to meet the person whom she felt was invading her space.

She shook her head, trying to erase the embarrassment from her mind so that she could focus on class. Now, it was time to talk to her students.

“Good morning, everyone. I have looked over the results of the diagnostic tests that some of you took yesterday. Everyone who took the test has been placed in the correct class. Unfortunately, some of you didn’t come to class on the first day. That’s going to be the subject of our first lesson on academic and university expectations. What happens when you don’t show up on the first day of a university class?”

“Teacher! Teacher!” A student from the back was waving his arm, practically jumping out of his seat to get her attention.

Stephanie looked at him. “Excuse me. What is your name?”

“Mohi. I just got off the plane this morning. I-

Stephanie held her hand up to stop him. “Just a minute. This is a good place to start. Hi, Mohi. It’s nice to meet you. If you had been here on the first day, you would have heard me talk about my classroom expectations. One expectation is that students call me by my name. I’m Stephanie. Please call me Stephanie. Another expectation that I have in this class is that you raise your hand quietly when you want to speak. That way everyone has an opportunity to speak. Finally, it’s really important to attend the first day of class—without exception. Let’s get back to my question. What happens when you don’t show up on the first day of a university class?”

Stephanie smiled at Mohi. He seemed a little confused, and he started to open his mouth to say something, but she gave him a slight shake of her head. She knew that he wanted to continue explaining why he didn’t attend the first day of class, but she needed to let him know that it wasn’t the right time.

A student near the back of the classroom raised her hand.

“Yes,” Stephanie smiled at her. “Can you remind me what your name is?”

“I’m Mara.”

“That’s right. Thanks, Mara. What did you want to say?”

“Well, my cousin told me that you get dropped if you don’t show.”

“That’s interesting. Can you explain what that means?” Stephanie tried to pull a little more information out of her.

“I’m not totally sure. I think, like, the professor takes you off the class list. Is that right?”

“It is a definite possibility,” Stephanie responded. “Does anyone have an idea why that might happen?”

Kelvin, sitting near the front, raised his hand slowly.

“Yes, go ahead, Kelvin.”

“Sometimes there are other students waiting to get into the class. I’m on the waiting list for two university classes right now. The professors told me that if someone doesn’t show up on the first day, I’ll get into the class.”

“That’s right. Of course, the professor or the department has the final say as to whether or not students are dropped or added to the class, but if you aren’t there on the first day, it’s as if you are saying, ‘I’m not interested in being here at all.’”

A woman in the front row raised her hand. “What if you have a legitimate reason for missing the class? Not bad travel plans, of course, but something serious like a sick child?”

Stephanie smiled. She liked the way this woman thought, not trying to get around the rules, but genuinely curious about something that could possibly affect her.

“Great question! I’ll pose that to the class. What do you all think?”

The room was silent. It seemed as if no one had any ideas. Stephanie turned her attention back to the woman in the front.

“Your name is Ameerah, right?”

“Yes.”

“What do you think the answer is, Ameerah? What would you do?”

“I would email the professor and tell her why I was going to miss the class.”

“Good idea.”

Mohi shouted out, “But what if you can’t? What if you’re on an airplane?”

Ameerah turned to look at him, “That won’t happen because you know better than to make your travel arrangements at the last minute. You also won’t travel on the day you are supposed to be attending your first class of the term.” Ameerah smiled at Mohi. He knew he had been outsmarted. He smiled back and nodded his head in agreement.

“Okay. Yes. I understand. But-”

“No buts,” Ameerah stated. “We learned that in summer term. Excuses don’t help us learn.”

Stephanie laughed. “I like that! Let’s make it our class motto!”

Exercise 4
True or False
Choose True or False based on “Stephanie’s Story.” If the statement is false, rewrite the sentence to make it true.

True / False 1. Stephanie was teaching English in Mexico during the summer.

True / False 2. Previously, Stephanie did not share her office with another instructor.

True / False 3. There are twelve students from eight countries in this class.

True / False 4. Stephanie wrote seven drawbacks to teaching on her pros and cons list.

True / False 5. Stephanie’s officemate is deaf.

True / False 6. If you don’t go to the first class, you might lose your place in the class.

Exercise 5
Multiple Choice
Choose the correct answers based on “Stephanie’s Story.” In some cases, more than one answer is correct. Choose all of the correct answers.

1. Who is Sara?
   a. Stephanie’s best friend
   b. A university employee
   c. An English teacher
   d. An English student

2. Why is Stephanie angry in section B?
   a. Her office is messy.
   b. Other university departments receive more donations.
   c. She has to share her office with someone.
   d. Her bookshelf is gone.

3. Why is Stephanie unhappy with her officemate?
   a. He ignored her.
   b. He left the door open.
   c. He might be a thief.
   d. Her wallet was stolen.
4. Why didn’t Marc acknowledge Stephanie in the office?
   a. He didn’t hear her.
   b. He is rude.
   c. He is angry that he has to share an office.
   d. He doesn’t like to talk.

5. Which classroom expectations does Stephanie talk about on the second day of class?
   a. Attending the first day of class
   b. The name students should call her
   c. How to request permission to speak
   d. When to leave the classroom

Exercise 6

Details

Find the information in the reading and fill in the blanks to complete the sentences. Some students may have different answers. There might be several ways to complete the sentences correctly.

1. Stephanie decides not to marry Steven. She needs to decide if she wants to ____________________________ and ____________________________.

2. Stephanie’s department ____________________________ bring a lot of donations to the university.

3. Stephanie feels ____________________________ on the first day of class because ____________________________.

4. When she finds her office door open, Stephanie ____________________________.

5. Stephanie makes a list of pros and cons about her job. There are ______________ pros and ______________ cons.

6. Stephanie learns that her officemate is ____________________________.

7. Students should always ____________________________ the first day of class.
Exercise 7
More Details
Answer the questions with information that you find from the reading. Write complete sentences. Do not copy sentences from the story. Use the information in the story to write your own sentences.

1. What decision did Stephanie make during the summer?

2. What department does Stephanie’s new officemate work in?

3. How many students were in the classroom when Stephanie walked in on the first day of class?

4. Why doesn’t Stephanie write an email to her officemate about the open door?

5. What are two of Stephanie’s classroom expectations that she tells her students about?

______ d. Stephanie discusses attending the first day of class with her students.

______ e. Stephanie learns that she has to share her office with another instructor.

______ f. Stephanie meets her officemate, Marc, and learns that he is deaf.
Part 5: Vocabulary Focus

Word-Building
Scan “Stephanie’s Story” and look for compound nouns. Did you find all the compound nouns? Can you figure out how to build compound nouns?

Compound Nouns
These nouns are made by combining two words. Often, they are two nouns or an adjective and a noun.

Examples:
The words, “home” and “work” together make the compound noun “homework.”

Put “rest” and “room” together to make the compound noun, “restroom.”

Exercise 11
Create Compounds
Choose the correct compound noun endings for each word below. Some words may have more than one possibility. Talk about the meaning of the compound nouns with your classmates.

1. air ______ a. back b. mate c. ache d. plane
2. class _____ a. room b. back c. mate d. ache
3. junk _____ a. shelf b. yard c. room d. flow
4. art ______ a. mate b. work c. shelf d. room
5. draw _____ a. plane b. yard c. mate d. back
6. office _____ a. flow b. shelf c. work d. mate
7. book _____ a. back b. shelf c. room d. ache
8. head _____ a. ache b. work c. plane d. room
9. over ______ a. room b. flow c. mate d. yard

Can you think of other compound nouns that you have heard or used frequently? Make a list with your classmates.
Prefixes: A prefix is added to the beginning of a word to add information to its definition.

re-
The prefix “re-” can mean “again” or “back.”

For example, the word “recover” means to get something “back.” Thomas recovered his lost wallet. (He got his lost wallet back.)

In another example, the word “redo” means to do something “again.” Stacy didn’t do the assignment correctly, so the teacher let her redo it. (The teacher is giving her a chance to do the assignment again.)

Exercise 12

Categorize
Divide the “re-” prefix words into the right category. You may have to search for the words in context or look them up in the dictionary to figure it whether the meaning is “again” or “back.”

Exercise 3

Pre-reading

Answer the following questions with a partner or small group.

1. What university expectations (or requirements) are discussed in “Stephanie’s Story?”

2. What are some common university or high school expectations (or requirements) in your home country?

3. Which expectations (or requirements) are the same in the US and in your home country?

4. Which expectations (or requirements) are different in the US and in your home country?
Part 2: Read
Read the article that Stephanie gave her students to help them understand what they should do in IELP classes.

IELP Expectations of Students

It is hard to be a student: doing homework, reading books, memorizing information, and taking tests. There is so much to learn. However, being a student is not only about learning course material and passing tests. It is also about learning proper behavior and attitudes to help you succeed. Here are a few suggestions that will help you be more successful in the IELP.

Be in Class
Attendance affects student success whether you are studying ESL or chemistry. If you are not in class, you will not learn. You have a greater chance of failure. That is why the IELP Attendance Policy is very strict. If you drop below 80% attendance in any class, you will be placed on attendance probation. This is similar to a warning. If your attendance improves after the warning, you will be allowed to continue studying in the IELP. If your attendance does not improve, you will be dismissed from the IELP. Skipping classes can cause several problems including not learning the required material and being asked to leave the program.

Be Organized
Organization helps students with time management and completing all of their tasks. It also helps balance school and home life. It is a good idea to make and follow a schedule of your classes, homework and study time, free time, and sleep. An organized life will also help you arrive on time or early for your classes. When you are early for your classes, you will have time to review, check over your homework, or prepare mentally for class.

Be Prepared
Organization is key to helping students be prepared for class. Doing homework ahead of time is one important part of preparation. Taking the proper tools to class is also important. You should always check that you have your books, paper, a pen, a pencil, and your homework. You should also have your homework ready to turn in before you arrive in class. This means your first and last name, the date, and the assignment should already be written on the paper. This saves time in class and makes a great impression on the teacher. It will be much easier to focus on learning if you are prepared ahead of time.

Be Open-Minded
Many students find it difficult to adapt to new ways of learning and different teaching styles in the US. They want to learn the same way they learned in their home country. It is important to be open-minded to different ways of teaching and learning. For example, you may be used to seeing the teacher stand in front of the class and lecture. However, in American universities, it is common for students to work together in groups, prepare presentations to teach

---

1 a period in which the student needs to have good attendance
2 sent away, asked to leave
3 very important
4 willing to try new things their classmates, and study a lot of information on their own. These may be unfamiliar methods, but you should be willing to try them.

Be Respectful

There are many ways to be respectful in your learning environment. Put your phone, tablet, or laptop away during class. This shows respect to the teacher and to the classmates you will be working with. If you arrive late, enter quietly. Don’t knock, don’t greet your classmates, and don’t announce why you are late. This is disruptive and can draw other students’ focus away from an important lesson or instructions. If you need to leave the classroom before class ends, do it quietly and only in an emergency. Additionally, don’t talk when your teacher is talking. You could easily miss important information from your teacher. Finally, when asking or responding to questions, raise your hand. There are many more ways to show respect in class, but these will give you a great start.

Following the tips suggested here is a smart way to begin a successful academic career in the US. As you gain experience, you will be able to add even more ideas about how to succeed.

Part 3: Comprehension

Understanding What You Read

Exercise 4

Multiple Choice

Choose the correct answers based on “IELP Expectations of Students.” In some cases, more than one answer is correct. Choose all of the correct answers. For incorrect answers, be prepared to share the reason it is not correct.

1. You will be placed on attendance probation if
   a. you skip a class.
   b. you attend more than 80% of the classes.
   c. you do not attend 80% of the classes.
   d. you skip more than 20% of the classes.

2. Organization will help with
   a. balancing school and home life.
   b. passing all your classes.
   c. going to class on time.
   d. making a schedule.

3. Being prepared for class
   a. is the key to organization.
   b. helps you focus.
   c. means you have to turn in your homework before class.
   d. means you take everything you need to class.

5 causing interruption to an activity
6 get more of something
4. Open-minded students
   a. are willing to try new things.
   b. only want to learn one way.
   c. don’t like change.
   d. are unfamiliar with new methods.

5. If you arrive late to class, you show respect by
   a. knocking on the door.
   b. apologizing to the teacher immediately.
   c. coming in and sitting down quietly.
   d. asking the teacher, “What are we doing?”

Exercise 5
True or False
Choose True or False based on “IELP Expectations of Students.” If the statement is false, rewrite the sentence to make it true.

True / False  1. Being a student is only about learning information and getting good grades.
True / False  2. Attendance is only important in IELP classes.
True / False  3. Writing and following a schedule can help you be more organized.
True / False  4. You should write your first and last names on assignments.
True / False  5. Different professors may have different teaching styles.
True / False  6. There are only five ways to show respect in the classroom.
Part 4: Reading Skills

Topic
The topic of a reading is a word or phrase that tells what the entire (whole) reading is about. You can find the topic of a sentence, a paragraph, an essay, an article, a book, or any piece of writing.

Think back to Chapter 1, “Stephanie’s Story.” What was the topic of that chapter?

a. University
b. Students
c. Stephanie

The best answer is “c. Stephanie.” It’s true that the story takes place at a university, and that students are in the story. However, the entire reading is about Stephanie.

Now look at the second paragraph of “IELP Expectations of Students.” What is the topic of that paragraph? Choose the best topic below.

a. Be in Class
b. Attendance
c. The attendance policy
d. The importance of attendance

The best answer is “d.”

Explanations:

a. “Be in Class” is actually the title or heading of this paragraph. It tells about the topic in this case but not always.

b. “Attendance” is too general. The paragraph is about attendance, but the topic is really more specific than that.

c. “The attendance policy” is a detail. This is not the topic of the entire paragraph. It is explained in the paragraph, but so are several other points.

d. “The importance of attendance” is the topic because every sentence in the paragraph gives us information about this topic.
Exercise 6
Identifying the Topic
Choose the best topic for each section of the article indicated below. Only 1 answer is correct for each.

1. “Be Organized,” Paragraph 3
   a. make a schedule
   b. be early
   c. benefits of organization

2. “Be Prepared,” Paragraph 4
   a. how to prepare
   b. be focused
   c. organization

   a. have an open mind
   b. teaching styles are different
   c. new methods

4. “Be Respectful,” Paragraph 6
   a. how to focus
   b. ways to show respect
   c. don’t disrupt

Main Idea
The main idea is different than the topic. The main idea is a sentence that tells the general idea that the writer wants to tell the reader. It includes the topic. All the sentences in the article are related to the main idea.

Exercise 7
Main Idea
Read the statements below. One is the main idea of the article. Label it “M.” One is too narrow, or small, to be the main idea. Label it “N.” One is too broad, or general, to be the main idea. Label it “B.” One sentence is unrelated to the article. Label it “U.”

_____ 1. If you have the proper attitude and behavior, you will always succeed and get As in your classes.
_____ 2. The right attitude and behavior will help you do well in the IELP.
_____ 3. Respect is an important part of success.
_____ 4. There are many ways to become successful.
Exercise 8
Details and Support
Show that you recognize details by answering the following questions. Write complete sentences. Do not copy sentences from the article. Use the information in the article to write your own sentences.

1. What is one possible result of not attending your classes?

________________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

2. What is one way to become more organized?

3. What are some examples of “the proper tools” that you should always take to class?

4. Write a narrative paragraph (100 words) about a student who does not follow these guidelines. What happens to him/her?
Chapter 3: The Pros and Cons of Studying Abroad

Part 1: Preview

Preview

Preview means to get a look at everything to activate your background knowledge. If you are previewing a website, look at headings and titles. Look at pictures, tables, graphs, etc. Look at captions. Click on different links around the site to see what is there.

In this chapter, you will look at a website and find information to help you understand international students in the United States. By searching for and answering questions, you will be practicing scanning for information. You will then use this information and your personal experiences to write a pros and cons list about studying abroad with your classmates.

Since this chapter is a little different than the previous chapters, and your reading is mostly on a website, the AWL vocabulary words selected from your exercises. Below are the words you need to have productive knowledge of. The bolded words are new vocabulary words for chapter 3. The italicized words are from chapters 1 and 2.

Flashcards
Make flashcards with the vocabulary words above. On one side of the card, write the word. On the other side, write the part of speech, a short definition, and an example sentence. Use the flashcards to quiz yourself whenever you have 5-10 minutes of free time.

Exercise 2
Preview
Preview the Institute of International Education’s (IIE) website (http://www.iie.org/).

1. Write a few notes while you are looking at the website. Your notes can include:
   - Unfamiliar vocabulary
   - Important or new information
   - Interesting facts
   - Information that applies to you
   - Descriptions of the pictures, tables or graphs you find

2. After you preview the site, write your main impressions or current knowledge of the Institute of International Education.

3. Share your knowledge with a partner in class. Do you both have the same information? If your information is different, why do you think it is different?
Part 2: Scanning

Scanning

Scanning is a useful reading skill. While scanning, you are looking for specific information. For example, you are looking for the answer to a question or a specific date or name. While you scan, keep the information you are looking for in your mind. Don’t read every word. You may find it helpful to use your finger when you scan to quickly move them over the words. Scanning is very useful for saving time. You should use scanning when you get very large reading assignments or when you have a limited amount of time to complete a task (like on a quiz or test).

Exercise 3

Scan for Information

Look for the following information on the Institute of International Education (http://www.iie.org/).

1. Look at the headings across the top of the page. Under which heading can you find information about these things? Click on each heading to see the sub-headings and place the items on the list below in the correct category.

Exercise 5
Reading Graphics
Under the “Research and Publications” tab, click on “Open Doors” (center of the page). Then click on “2015 Infographics” under the “Open Doors Toolkit” column on the right of the page. Scan the graphic titled, “A Quick Look at International Students in the US,” and answer the following questions (http://www.iie.org/Research-and-Publications/Open-Doors/Data/Infographics).

1. How many international students studied in the United States in the previous school year?

2. Since 1953, the number of international students studying in the US has ________.
   a. gone up
   b. gone down
   c. stayed the same

3. What are the two most popular majors for international students?

4. In the previous school year, there were ______________ international graduate students than international undergraduate students.
   a. the same number of
   b. more
   c. fewer

5. Where did the majority of international students come from in the previous school year?

6. How do most international students pay their expenses?

7. How much money did international students contribute to the US economy in the last school year?

8. What three states have the highest population of international students?

9. What percentage of all US higher education students were international?
Part 4: Using Information

You practiced scanning. You learned information about an international education institute. You took a quiz about your own global knowledge. You learned about international students in the US. You should now have enough information to develop a pros and cons list about studying abroad. Look back at chapter one, on page 7, where Stephanie listed the pros and cons of her career. You can model your list after hers.

In the following section, you will work with a partner to create a list of pros and cons of studying abroad. Unlike Stephanie’s list, you will not be making a decision based on the list because you are already studying abroad. However, the list is a good way to think about the positives and negatives, or advantages and disadvantages, of your current situation.

Exercise 6
Writing
With a partner, create a list of pros and cons for studying abroad.

1. Decide how to make your list more specific.
   - Do you want to focus on the pros and cons of the specific location (Portland / Oregon / PSU) of study?
   - Do you want to focus on the pros and cons of an American university?
   - Do you want to focus on the pros and cons of being abroad or away from home?

   We are writing about the pros and cons of ______________________________.

2. Now, write a list of 5-7 pros (advantages).
   Think about cost, family, friends, language, time, culture, education style, your future, and more to help you write your advantages.

Exercise 8
Using Word Forms
First, determine the part of speech for each missing word. Then use the correct word forms to complete each sentence below.

1. Some teachers use very ___________ teaching methods.
2. Mark Zuckerberg is one of the ___________ of Facebook.
3. Stephanie solved her own problem ________________.
4. The teacher asked the students to ______________ flashcards to study the vocabulary.
a. previous  b. previously

5. Stephanie ___________ lived just outside of Portland, but now she lives in Portland.

6. Laura’s _________ grammar class was easier than this grammar class.
   a. culture  b. cultural  c. culturally

7. Jae’s home __________ is very different from Mohi’s.

8. In the US, it is ___________ acceptable for friends to hug when they see each other.

9. Though the students are from different countries, there is rarely ___________ conflict in Stephanie’s class.
   a. research  b. researched  c. researchers

10. A group of ___________ is interested in studying how taking notes affects student success.

11. When Li ____________ her family history, she found some interesting information.

12. The ____________ was completed in 2012, but the scientists didn’t publish the article until 2015.
   a. specific  b. specify  c. specifically

13. “Can you tell me _____________ what you need help with?” the tutor asked.

14. Lulu told Stephanie that she doesn’t understand anything in class. Stephanie asked Lulu to ____________ two or three things that she doesn’t understand.

15. I don’t have any _____________ questions right now.

Exercise 9
Synonyms
Replace all the bolded and italicized words with good synonyms from unit 1.

1. Some areas of the US are more popular for international students. It can depend on what that place has to offer the students. Many language-learning academies are in large cities where students have a lot of options, and some are in more rural areas.
2. One of the benefits of studying abroad is that the greater part of the people you interact with don’t speak your first language. This gives you many opportunities to improve. In the IELP, there is a large proportion of Arabic speaking students, but there are also students from many other language backgrounds. This makes a diverse learning environment for the students.

Exercise 10

Answering Questions

The questions below use vocabulary words from chapter 3. Answer each question with a complete sentence. Your answers show that you understand the meaning of the vocabulary word.

1. How do you think teachers should evaluate their students?

2. Approximately what percentage of students in this program speak your native language? (Make a guess.)

3. What are a few of the major points that make your culture unique?

4. Which section of unit 1 did you find most helpful? Why?

5. What do you do to focus in class?
Part 6: Application

Exercise 11

Writing

Write your answers on a separate piece of paper to turn in.

1. Think of a decision you must make in the near future. Possible choices are: your undergraduate major, where to study, which elective class to take, whether or not to move to a new dorm/apartment/host family, whether or not to go on a short trip for the weekend. You might have another idea.

Write a sentence to describe the decision you must make.

Example: I need to decide where I will go to school after I finish ESL.

Your sentence: I need to decide _________________________________.

2. Now list some choices for yourself.

Example: Choices:
1. study at PSU
2. return to my country and study at a university there
3. study at a different US university

Write at least 3 choices for yourself.
1.
2.
3.

3. Now, select one of the choices above. Circle it. Make a list of pros and cons about that choice. Make a chart like the one below and write a minimum of 4 pros and 4 cons for each choice.

4. Write 2-3 sentences to explain what decision you would make today (if you had to) and why.
Unit 2: Problem Solving

Chapter 4: Luna and Violeta’s Story

You will read a story about Luna, a Japanese college student, and Violeta, a Mexican businesswoman. Luna is away from her family for the first time and has difficulty adjusting to her life at PSU. Violeta is living with her brother’s family and is having difficulties at home. Luna and Violeta become friends and learn about problem solving.

Chapter 5: Solve That Problem

You will read about steps to take to be a successful problem solver.

Chapter 6: Easier Said than Done

You will brainstorm ideas to help international students solve common problems that they face abroad.

Vocabulary: Academic Word List
Below are two lists of words from the Academic Word List. These words are important to know because they are frequently used in academic settings (university textbooks, lectures, etc.).

You need to know the parts of speech, word forms, and definition of all of the words. Additionally, you need to know how to use the bolded words in the right-hand list in sentences. Study these words carefully. Your teacher will introduce different ways to study vocabulary. Try each one until you find your preferred method or methods.

Reminder

Receptive Knowledge of Vocabulary: This means you understand these words when you read them and hear them. The words repeated from chapter 1 are italicized. The new words are in bold.

Productive Knowledge of Vocabulary: This means you correctly use these words in your own writing and speaking. The words repeated from chapter 1 are italicized. The new words are in bold.

You need to recognize and understand these words when you see them. As you read textbooks for your other classes, highlight these words. Ask yourself these things:

- What part of speech is the word, and how is it used in the sentence?
- Is this word used multiple times? Is it important?
- What other words often occur near this word?
- Can I replace this word with a synonym and still understand the sentence?
- Can I recognize other word forms of this word?

You need to know and understand the words above when you find them in a reading. You should also begin to use these words in your conversations and writing. Study these words, look for them, listen for them, and ask yourself these things:

- What part of speech is the word, and how is it used in the sentence?
- How can I use this word in speaking? In writing?
- What other words often occur near this word?
- Can I replace a synonym with this word?
- Can I recognize and use other word forms of this word?

Pre-reading Questions

1. Are you introverted (shy) or extroverted (outgoing)?

2. Think about your first experience meeting someone who was from a different country than you or who spoke a different language than you. What was that experience like? Was it positive (+) or negative (-)?

3. Why did you decide to study English here?
Part 2: Read

Luna and Violeta’s Story

Luna slipped into the classroom five minutes after the start of class. She was usually early for class. Back at her university in Japan, she made sure to always arrive to class five minutes early, prepared and ready to listen to the lecture. She had a four point GPA\(^1\). However, here, in the US, she felt uncomfortable and completely lost. She couldn’t sleep at night, which meant she had a hard time waking up in the morning. Everything in her life was affected by it. She was always forgetting homework assignments and arriving late to class. She forgot to study for a quiz in grammar class. She missed a required appointment with her instructor.

Luna was 20 years old. Her parents were extremely supportive\(^2\). She only asked once, and they readily agreed that studying abroad for six months was an excellent idea. They even offered to pay all her expenses. They were excited for her to have this adventure. They believed in her.

As an introvert, Luna had a hard time reaching out to other people. In her two and a half weeks in the US, she hardly\(^3\) spoke more than twenty words to five people. She felt so lonely and insecure. She wanted a friend more than anything, but she didn’t have any idea how to get one. Everyone in her classes already had friends, and they didn’t appear interested in finding new ones. She didn’t feel confident enough about her English to just walk up to someone and start talking. Instead, she spent a lot of time alone. She Skyped with her friends back in Japan once in a while but not too often. It made her feel even lonelier.

Everything was so overwhelming\(^4\) to her. She didn’t have anyone to talk to in Portland. She didn’t feel like she could talk to her parents about this. Even though she talked to them once a week, she made sure the calls were short. She didn’t want to get too emotional and give them a reason to worry. She didn’t want them to know that she was having a hard time. She didn’t want them to worry about her. Mostly, though, she didn’t want them to think she was unsuccessful. She didn’t want them to regret supporting her. She didn’t want to disappoint them.

As Luna sat in her chair near the back of the classroom, Stephanie handed her a worksheet and smiled at her.

“Good morning, Luna! Today, we are going to work with partners on a problem solving activity. I have already selected and assigned partners. I’m pairing you up with Violeta. Have you met her yet?”

Luna shook her head. Her heart started to beat faster. She felt sick to her stomach. It didn’t matter how much she wanted a friend, she still felt anxious\(^5\) at the thought of talking to someone she didn’t know, especially in English. She often saw Violeta chatting and laughing with the other students. She always wished that she could join them, but she didn’t know how. Violeta seemed so nice, but that didn’t ease Luna’s anxiety. She took a deep breath and tried to calm her racing heart.

“Okay. Everyone sit with the partner I assigned you, and go through the questions on the handout. Make sure you really discuss your answers and try to think of some creative solutions together. When you finish discussing each problem, I want you to make a list of strategies for problem solving in general. We’ll combine all of our ideas to come up with a problem solving resource list that we can pass on to other students to help them problem solve too.”

Luna stared at her notebook. Should she move? Should she wait for Violeta to come to her? This was pure torture.

“Hi!”
Luna looked up and nodded. “H-hi,” she stammered.

“So, I’m Violeta. I’m from Mexico. I already know you are Luna. I really like your name. Did you know that luna means moon in Spanish? It’s a very beautiful name. My name means violet. That’s a flower. It’s also a color. What does your name mean in Japanese?”

Luna had a hard time following Violeta. She talked a mile a minute, but Luna couldn’t help but smile at her. She also wasn’t sure which question to answer first. “Um. No. I didn’t know that about my name. Thank you,” Luna practically whispered, but she felt so proud of herself. She was actually talking to someone, to Violeta, the most popular and outgoing woman in the class. “Um. My name is actually Runa. It also means something about the moon. I use the nickname Luna because it’s probably easier for people here to say.”

“That’s awesome,” Violeta smiled.

Luna was starting to relax. This wasn’t so hard. She looked at the paper and started working with Violeta.

B.

“Okay, everybody, listen up. If you didn’t get a chance to finish, you’ll need to meet with your partner outside of class. Next time, I’ll have each pair share the best problem solving technique that they came up with.

Violeta’s eyes crinkled up when she smiled. “Luna, do you want to go across the street to PDX Café? We can finish this up and keep chatting. I’m dying for a latte.”

Luna loved the way Violeta talked. She was very extreme. “Sure. Let’s go!”

C.

After they finished their problem solving, Violeta asked Luna, “Why did you come to Portland to study?”

---

6 very quickly
“My cousin studied here when he was in college. He had a very good experience. I just decided to try it too. It seemed easier to go someplace that my family already knew about.”
Violeta nodded. “That makes sense.”
Luna took a shallow breath. She wanted to keep the conversation going. “Um, so, what about you?”
“Well. I have been working for about ten years. I wanted a break, so I saved my money and came here to study. My brother lives here, so it was an easy choice.”
“Do you live with your brother?”
“Yes, and his wife, and their two kids.”
“That’s nice.”
“Well. Mostly. His kids are great. I kind of feel like his wife is not too happy that I’m living there for a while.”
“Why do you say that?”
“Oh, just little things. Molly always hides in her bedroom when I am there. She never wants to talk to me. She always whispers with my brother but won’t really interact with me. It makes me feel like maybe they are fighting about me. I might have to find a different place to stay.”
Luna was quiet, but she was thinking. “How long have you known her?”
Violeta thought for a moment, “Well, they have been married for about five years, but we met in person for the first time just a few weeks ago when I arrived.”
“Ahhh.”
“Luna, what are you thinking? I know you have an idea bouncing around in there.”
“Well. I just wondered if maybe she is shy. You know, like me. It, um, it takes a while for me to feel comfortable around other people.” She realized that she was whispering, and she self-consciously cleared her throat.
“I don’t know.” Violeta didn’t look convinced. “I guess she could be. What if she is?”
Luna felt confident. She knew about being shy. “If she is shy, it means she doesn’t dislike you. She just needs her space and maybe she needs you to, um, make the first step?”
Violeta nodded. “I’ll think about it.”
Before they parted ways, Violeta and Luna exchanged cell phone numbers. “I’ll text you tonight to let you know how it goes with my sister-in-law.”
“Okay, bye!”
Luna walked back to her dorm on a cloud. She didn’t feel lost anymore. She had a friend, a real friend. Maybe this would be good experience after all.

D.

Violeta walked into her brother and sister-in-law’s house right at six o’clock. She was tired. Two quizzes, one discussion group, and a long conversation with Luna over coffee—it was a long day. Violeta remembered what Luna said in the coffee shop. Maybe her sister-in-law,

7 uncomfortably, with embarrassment
Molly, was just shy. Maybe she just didn’t like Violeta though. Violeta took a deep breath. She was good at confrontation. She was a businesswoman. She had to confront coworkers and clients all the time. It was no big deal. Of course, she didn’t have to live in the same house as her coworkers or employees. It was a little bit different.

Molly was pulling items out of the refrigerator. Mia, the two year old, was holding on to her leg and saying, “Up. Up. Up, Mommy!” over and over. Molly look exhausted and overwhelmed. She looked like she might start to cry any minute. Violeta noticed that her brother, Juan Carlos was sitting in the living room looking at his phone. He paid no attention to Molly’s situation. She was obviously trying to start dinner. She was still wearing her work clothes, so she must have just arrived home. Juan Carlos was already showered and changed out of his work clothes. He was a foreman for a very good construction company. He usually arrived home earlier than his wife.

Suddenly, the baby started crying. Baby Nathan was probably hungry, possibly cutting a new tooth. Juan Carlos called out, “Molly, the baby!”

If Juan Carlos was not staring at his phone, he would have seen the look of anger that both his wife and sister gave him at the same time. Violeta was shocked. Juan Carlos was not usually so inconsiderate. In fact, he often helped with the children and with the meals. Molly dumped all the food she had in her arms onto the counter and stomped out of the room. Violeta caught a glimpse of her tears as she fled.

“Juan Carlos! How could you be so inconsiderate! What are you doing?” Violeta slipped automatically into Spanish. She was much more comfortable speaking Spanish with her brother. She usually spoke English in the house, though, because Molly only spoke a little Spanish, and Violeta didn’t want her to feel left out.

“What? I just told her the baby was crying? What’s the big deal?” Juan Carlos replied in their native language.

“Molly was trying to start dinner. Mia was holding onto her leg, making it impossible. You are just sitting there! Are you on Facebook?” Violeta felt like she was in high school again. She felt immature for yelling at her brother, but she knew Molly wouldn’t say anything. She knew that she had to say something even if she wasn’t doing it right. She also knew how to hurt his feelings. “Mama would be ashamed of you.”

Juan Carlos set his phone down. You’re right. I was tired and being lazy. Violeta, will you start dinner? I’ll go talk to Molly.”

Wow. Violeta’s eyes opened wide. She was a bit surprised about this calm response from her brother. She was also proud. She might not have matured enough to not yell at him, but he had definitely grown up. A tear came to her eye. She quickly wiped it away and gave her brother a big hug. “Go. Go! Talk to your beautiful wife, and tell her you’re sorry! Take the baby. I’ll keep Mia out here with me.”

Violeta gathered up the food and started to make the most delicious dinner she could.

E.

“Did you get my message last night?”
“I did, but I didn’t understand it.”
“Guess what!”

Luna laughed. Violeta was always enthusiastic. “What? Tell me! I can’t guess.”
“Okay! I’ll tell you. Remember when you said that maybe Molly, my sister-in-law, might just be shy?”

Luna nodded her head.
“‘Well, I got home last night and everything was crazy. I yelled at my brother because he was just sitting there, and the baby was crying, and Molly was trying to make dinner. Then she started crying. It was a mess. After we all got calmed down, I just asked her how I could help out around the house. She was so nice. We made a schedule so that everyone will take turns cooking two nights a week so that she won’t be so stressed out.”

Luna smiled. Violeta was a great problem solver.
“Also,” Violeta continued, “It turns out that my brother never asked her what she thought about me staying with them. She wasn’t mad at me; she was mad at him. We had a long talk, it was really positive. I can’t believe my brother. He let me believe that he’d talked to her, and they had agreed together. Now, we are both mad at him.”

“Does he know?”
“Oh yes! He’s in the dog house.”
“In the what?”
“The dog house. Molly taught me. Isn’t it funny? It means he’s in big trouble.”
“Is he really in the dog house?”
“Well, no. We resolved the problems together by talking about everything after the kids went to bed. I think we are going to be okay. And I’m sure I don’t need to find a new place to live.”

Luna and Violeta were walking to their favorite coffee shop. They saw ____________ crossing the street. He was having a hard time because _________ of the cars were stopping. The traffic signals were broken and ____________ knew what to do. Finally, two police officers arrived. ____________ began to help. ____________ directed the traffic, and ____________ helped pedestrians cross the street. ____________ was relieved that they could safely get where they wanted to go.

Now, write your own paragraph about Luna and Violeta. Use at least 5 indefinite pronouns.
Suffix: -er and –or

1. One function is to identify a noun as “a person who” does the work or job of the rest of the word. For example, a “teacher” is “a person who teaches.” In the same way, a “manager” is “a person who manages.”
2. The second function is to identify an action verb. Verbs such as cover, gather, honor, matter, and remember are all examples of these verbs.

Noun: a person who…
Verb: an action

Exercise 15
Multiple Choice
Look through the “Luna and Violeta’s Story” and divide the words ending with “-or” and “-er” into two categories: nouns and verbs.

1. What do you do when you face a problem or a difficult situation?
   a. ignore the problem and hope it goes away
   b. talk to someone and get advice
   c. try to figure out a solution by myself
   d. Other: _______________________________

2. Are the problems you experience different now than those you faced 5 years ago? How?

3. Have you ever helped a friend solve a difficult problem? What did you do?
Part 2: Read

Read the article that Stephanie gave her students to help them problem solve.

Solve That Problem

Problem solving is a challenge that everyone must face on a daily basis. Students, especially, have to work hard to overcome their problems. In some cases, this is because it is their first time away from home, in an adult setting. They must rise to the challenge of solving their own problems rather than relying on their parents or teachers to solve them. Some problems are given by professors as homework assignments. They help students to improve their logic and critical thinking skills. Other problems come about because of life situations. Whether you are an international or a domestic student, you will come up against challenges that you must work to overcome. There are some simple steps that you can take to help you through the problem solving process.

Identify

First things first. You know you have a problem. But do you know exactly what the problem is? You must gather information about your problem to determine the precise nature of the problem. You need to think about your current situation and what is causing this situation. What factors are creating the problematic situation? For example, if your problem is low quiz scores, consider what circumstances are resulting in a low grade in this area. You might brainstorm your problem identification like this.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Brainstorm:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Problem: Often miss quizzes at the beginning of class</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cause: Usually arrive late to class</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cause: Always wake up late</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cause: Always go to bed late</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cause: Never finish homework early</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cause: Spend too much time socializing during the day</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cause: Homesick and don’t want to be alone</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
At first, it looks like the problem is low quiz scores, but by examining carefully and honestly evaluating the causes, you realize that the true problem is homesickness. Through a chain of cause and effect, this is resulting in missing the quizzes in your morning class. Now that the true problems and their causes have been identified, you can begin to think about possible solutions.

Create

Now, you need to brainstorm all the possible ideas to solve your problem. No idea is too ridiculous. Any idea is acceptable during the brainstorm process.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Homesickness Solutions</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Move home</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stop studying</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Study with friends</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialize after studying</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialize as a reward for studying</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Find a roommate from my country</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Study between classes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>No studying after 11pm rule</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In bed by 11pm rule</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wake up early to study in morning</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Set more alarms</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Make time to talk to my family once a day</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

As you can see from the brainstorm above, some of the ideas are a little silly. These can be crossed out later. Some of the ideas might work well in conjunction with other ideas. You might need to find just the right combination of ideas to create the perfect solution.

Select and Try

Now, select the best idea or ideas and implement them. What combination of the ideas from the brainstorm would you recommend putting into practice? Start small. Give yourself time

---

13 with; together with
to get used to the new way of doing things. After you are used to your solution, it’s time for the final step in problem solving.

Evaluate and Repeat

Is the problem solved? If not, is it because you need more time or because the solution you chose is not working. You need to evaluate the effectiveness of your solution. If you have given yourself plenty of time, and you still have your original problem, it’s time to choose a different solution and repeat the steps. If you no longer have a problem, congratulations, you completed the problem solving process successfully on your first try!

Choose True or False based on “Solve That Problem.” If the statement is false, rewrite the sentence to make it true.

True / False 1. Only international students have challenges to overcome.

True / False 2. Sometimes what you think is the problem is a result of the true problem.

True / False 3. When brainstorming, only write down ideas that you have thought about carefully.

True / False 4. If you follow the steps, you will always solve your problem immediately.

True / False 5. You might have to try a combination of ideas to solve your problem.

True / False 6. There is usually only one cause to each problem.
Part 4: Reading Skills

Exercise 6
Identifying the Topic
Write a word or phrase that describes the topic for each paragraph of the article indicated below.

1. Paragraph 2: ____________________________________________
2. Paragraph 3: ____________________________________________
3. Paragraph 4: ____________________________________________
4. Paragraph 5: ____________________________________________

Exercise 7
Main Idea
Read the statements below. One is the main idea of the article. Label it “M.” One is too narrow, or specific, to be the main idea. Label it “N.” One is too broad, or general, to be the main idea. Label it “B.” One sentence is unrelated to the article. Label it, “U.”

_____ 1. Problem solving is important.
_____ 2. Brainstorming the causes of your problem will help you get to a solution.
_____ 3. By following certain steps, you can try to solve your own problems.
_____ 4. If you don’t deal with your problems, they will get worse.

Exercise 8
Details and Support
Show that you recognize details by answering the following questions. Write complete sentences. Do not copy sentences from the article. Use the information in the article to write your own sentences.

1. How many steps are described in the problem solving process? What are they?

________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
2. Why should you brainstorm to identify your problem?

____________________________________________________________________________________________

Part 2: Read

Read the article that Stephanie gave her students to practice solving problems.

Easier Said Than Done

International students quickly learn to become problem solvers. At first, their problems may consist of things that are easily fixable like where to buy food or how to find their classes. Once figured out, these problems disappear. Other problems are more serious and take more time and consideration to work out. The problems also depend on the individual students. Everyone has their own opinion of what a problem consists of and looks like. The following students have problems that they need help solving. As you read, think about what you would do in each situation.

Fahad

Fahad has been living with a host family, the Smiths, for two months. The family is very kind. He(1) likes them a lot. They(2) take him on day trips almost every weekend. He has learned a lot about American culture and families from the Smiths.

However, their two small children, Jessica and Lucas, cry and wake him up several times every night. He feels like he doesn’t get enough sleep. In addition, the host family has two indoor dogs. He doesn’t feel comfortable with the dogs living inside the house. He’s getting used to them(3), but he’d prefer to live in a house without pets.

The Smiths live very close to PSU. Fahad’s commute to school is short. He loves the location. He enjoys the family. However, he’s starting to think that he should live on his own. He doesn’t have enough money to rent an apartment close to campus though.

Mercy

Mercy is in level 3 for all of her ESL classes. It’s her first term in the IELP, and she feels like she is drowning. She spends five to six hours studying and doing homework outside of class every day. Every Saturday and Sunday, she studies from 8am to 8pm in the library. Nothing seems to be working. Mercy got Ds and Fs on all of her midterm exams. She feels very disappointed in herself.

Mercy doesn’t know what to do. She doesn’t want to fail her classes, but it looks like that will happen. She has attended every class and studies harder than all of her classmates. She can’t figure out why she isn’t passing. Her effort and her results don’t seem to equate.

Ha

Ha has been studying in the IELP for about seven months. She really likes the teachers. She really likes the school. She enjoys Portland and the rainy days. Only one thing has been bothering her lately. One man who was in her class last term seems to be following her everywhere. She is not sure if he is really following her or if it is her imagination. She just knows that she feels very uncomfortable.
Yesterday, she was in the cafeteria. She saw him sitting at the table next to hers. He was staring at her. She tried not to look, but it’s hard to avoid looking at someone who stares at you. She had to get up and leave the cafeteria. She couldn’t even eat her food.

Last week, she was in the computer lab. He sat at the computer next to her, but he moved his chair so that it was almost touching hers. It seemed inappropriate to her. She didn’t know what to do, so she left the lab.

A few weeks ago, Ha was leaving the library at seven o’clock. She was walking back to her dorm room with her friends. She looked behind her and saw him following her group. She knows that he lives on the opposite end of campus, but maybe he was just going to visit a friend. However, she could see him watching her, and he stayed behind her group even though they were walking very slowly.

Small things like these make Ha think that she needs to transfer to a different school. She doesn’t know what to do about the situation. She feels too uncomfortable to talk to the man and tell him to leave her alone.

Hiroki

Hiroki’s father was just diagnosed with cancer two weeks ago. His father didn’t want him to know, but his mother secretly told him. She called him crying. He had never seen or heard his mother cry before. It shocked and worried him. The next day, he called his dad and demanded to know all the details. His dad pretended that it was a small thing, but Hiroki doesn’t believe him.

Now, Hiroki has to decide if he should give up his dream to study in the US. His mother wants him to come back to Japan. His father insists that he should keep studying and not worry. Hiroki is confused. He has trouble focusing when he’s studying now. He got a C- on his last test because he could not concentrate. He worries that he will not be able to maintain his high GPA. He has to make a decision soon.
Part 3: Comprehension
Understanding What You Read

Exercise 4
True or False
Choose True or False based on “Easier Said than Done.” If the statement is false, rewrite the sentence to make it true.

True / False 1. This article explains how to solve problems.
True / False 2. This article is about international students’ problems.
True / False 3. Fahad likes cats, but he doesn’t like dogs.
True / False 4. Mercy studies hard, but she is not passing her classes.
True / False 5. Ha feels uncomfortable because a man is following and staring at her.
True / False 6. Hiroki’s father is probably fine.
True / False 7. Hiroki decided to stay in the US.

Pronoun Reference
Pronouns take the place of nouns. Every pronoun should refer to a noun that comes before it. There are a few exceptions to this rule. The noun that the pronoun refers to is called the antecedent.

Look at these examples from the first paragraph of “Easier Said than Done.”

International students quickly learn to become problem solvers. At first, their problems may consist of things that are easily fixable like where to buy food or how to find their classes.

In the sentences above, the possessive adjective “their” refers to “international students’.”

The following students have problems that they need help solving.

In the sentence above, the subject pronoun “they” refers to “the following students.”
Exercise 5

Pronoun Reference

Read back through the article. Identify and write the antecedent for the underlined and numbered pronouns.

1. He: ______________________________________
2. They: _________________________________
3. them: _________________________________
4. She: __________________________________
5. him: __________________________________
6. It: ____________________________________
7. they: _________________________________
8. him: __________________________________
9. him: __________________________________
10. he: __________________________________

Exercise 6

Restate

Write one sentence to describe each character’s problem in “Easier Said than Done.”

1. Fahad __________________________________________
2. Mercy ____________________________________________
3. Ha _____________________________
4. Hiroki ________________________________________________
Part 5: Vocabulary

Exercise 7
Word Forms
Categorize the vocabulary words by their part of speech in the table below. Add the other word forms you know. Use your dictionary.

Exercise 8
Using Word Forms
Using the words from the chart above, write 10 sentences showing that you can use different word forms. One example is done for you.

Example:
Individual (n): Each individual must identify their specific problems.
Individual (adj): One problem may have several individual causes.
Individually (adv): Each student took the test individually.

1. ____________________________________________________________
2. ____________________________________________________________
3. ____________________________________________________________
4. ____________________________________________________________
5. ____________________________________________________________
6. ____________________________________________________________
7. ____________________________________________________________
8. ____________________________________________________________
Exercise 9
Answering Questions
The questions below use vocabulary words from chapter 6 in bold and underlined. Answer each question with a complete sentence. Your answers show that you understand the meaning of the vocabulary word. (Note: The italicized words are vocabulary words from previous chapters.)

1. How can an IELP student maintain a high grade point average (GPA)?

2. If you have to transfer to a different university in the future, what factors will you consider in your decision?

3. What did you breakfast consist of today?

4. What are some of the differences in problems you have encountered in your home culture and in American culture?
Part 6: Application

Exercise 10
Writing
Write your answers on a separate piece of paper to turn in.

1. You read about the problems of four IELP students in the text. For each case, take some notes and be prepared to talk about the following with your classmates. Some example answers have been given for the first problem.

   1. Identify the problem(s).
   2. Create a list of ideas to help solve the problem.
   3. Select the best idea or ideas.
   4. Imagine the results of this idea.
   5. Determine if this is a good solution.

Example for Fahad

1. Fahad needs more sleep because he is getting woken up at night. Fahad does not like living in a house with pets.

We can identify two problems that Fahad is facing.

2. *wear earplugs to bed
   *ask family to put pets outside *learn about pets and why they are important to family *move to a different host family
   *get his own apartment
   *move onto campus

We can come up with a list of many solutions. Some solutions have Fahad staying in his current situation. Some solutions have Fahad moving out.

3. Fahad should get his own apartment in a town a little farther away from campus so that he can afford the rent.

We know that one of Fahad’s concerns is cost. He doesn’t have enough money to rent an apartment close to school. However, maybe he will have enough to rent a little farther away from school.

4. Possible results (from your imagination):

   *Fahad comes to class late every day because he lives far away from campus
   *Fahad can’t pay his rent because he didn’t think about other expenses like utilities, internet, food, etc.
Fahad’s neighbors have dogs and they bark all night. Fahad still can’t sleep at night.

The imagined results are a little extreme, but this is part of making a good decision, you should imagine any possible result, not just the good ones.

5. The solution might not be good. Maybe Fahad should get a roommate or maybe he should try to stay with his host family.

Now, write your notes about Mercy, Ha, and Hiroki. Remember to do the following:

1. Identify the problem(s).
2. Create a list of ideas to help solve the problem.
3. Select the best idea or ideas.
4. Imagine the positive and negative results of this idea.
5. Determine if this is a good solution.

Exercise 11

Problems Faced by International Students

The following list was created by international students. The list contains real problems faced by international students at Portland State University. Read through the list with your classmates. Ask your teacher about any words that are new to you.

1. They don’t know where their classes are or they are hard to find.
2. They don’t know how to use the street car or trains.
3. They will not be able to find good meals that they like to eat.
4. They don’t know where the good areas to live are.
5. They don’t have anyone to talk to when they are homesick.
6. They feel shy when they want to ask questions.
7. They have difficulty finding real friends.
8. They have a hard time finding apartments or houses to live in.
9. They have a hard time understanding people because they speak too quickly.
10. Studying English is difficult.
11. They suffer from culture shock.
12. They live alone.
13. They can’t adapt to eating American food.
14. They don’t come to class on time.
15. They are not native speakers of their second language.
16. They can’t find what they need.
17. Health insurance is necessary and expensive.
18. They need to get high scores on the IELTS or TOEFL.
19. They have problems with their I-20s.
20. They only have 10 minutes to get to classes, but the buildings are far apart.
21. Doing group work in class can be uncomfortable for some students.
22. They don’t know how to use the money.
23. The weather is unfamiliar.
24. There is too much homework.
25. Transportation is different from their country.
26. There are a lot of different types of food.
27. Greeting culture is very difficult. For example, Americans give hugs when they greet friends.

Now, think about the list carefully. With your partners, do the following;

1. Decide if each problem relates specifically to international students. If it does not relate to (only) international students, draw a line through the sentence.

   Which numbers from the list did you remove? _______________________

2. Decide which problems are easily remedied. In other words, which problems can easily be fixed, and you never have to worry about them again? Circle those numbers.

   Which numbers from the list did you circle? _______________________

3. Decide which problems would me more difficult to solve. In other words, which problems might take a while to fix or might not be fixable? Highlight those sentences.

   Which sentences from the list did you highlight? _____________________

4. From the problems you and your partners highlighted, which one is the most serious problem for international students? The answer to this is your opinion. Talk to your partners and come to an agreement.

   Which problem does your group think is most serious? Write the problem below.

   ______________________________________________________________
5. Now, brainstorm some possible solutions to the problem your group has chosen. How can you remedy the problem? Remember, you can’t change the problem or avoid it. You need to work to resolve it.
