The Leader-Franklin Roosevelt

The following is an excerpt from the New York Age, a publication founded in 1897 by Dr. Benjamin Banneker, a notable African-American statesman and astronomer. The article discusses the role of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt in the United States during the Great Depression and World War II. Roosevelt is portrayed as a leader who took responsibility for the country during a time of great hardship and conflict.

For 40 years, The New York Age has had but one outstanding exception, known as a consistent, ardent supporter of the Republican presidential candidates. In 1932, when we supported Franklin Delano Roosevelt in the presidential campaign, we had hailed him as the coming leader of the world. In 1932, when we supported Franklin Delano Roosevelt in the presidential campaign, we had hailed him as the coming leader of the world.
DEWEY AND HIS PUBLIC SERVICE

By FRANKLIN D. FRANKLIN

What is the great issue of this campaign? It is the issue of shipment of our people for foreign service as a reward and an honor for their patriotic efforts. dewey and his party are in favor of this, while the other party is opposed. The issue of the campaign has been closely followed by the public, and the two parties have been in a constant struggle to secure the support of the people. The issue has been decided, and the people have spoken. The issue of the campaign has been closely followed by the public, and the two parties have been in a constant struggle to secure the support of the people. The issue has been decided, and the people have spoken.

DOES PAGE A GREAT DEAL OF PLEASURE TO VIEW

It found respect for the dignity of the administration in the post-war four years of the United States. It is the great issue of this campaign to determine whether the best interests of this great nation lie in the hands of the Four Fathers of the Democratic party, as represented by Mr. Dewey, or in the hands of the Republican party, as represented by Mr. Roosevelt. The issue of the campaign has been closely followed by the public, and the two parties have been in a constant struggle to secure the support of the people. The issue has been decided, and the people have spoken.
