Reactions to current state of data use around student success

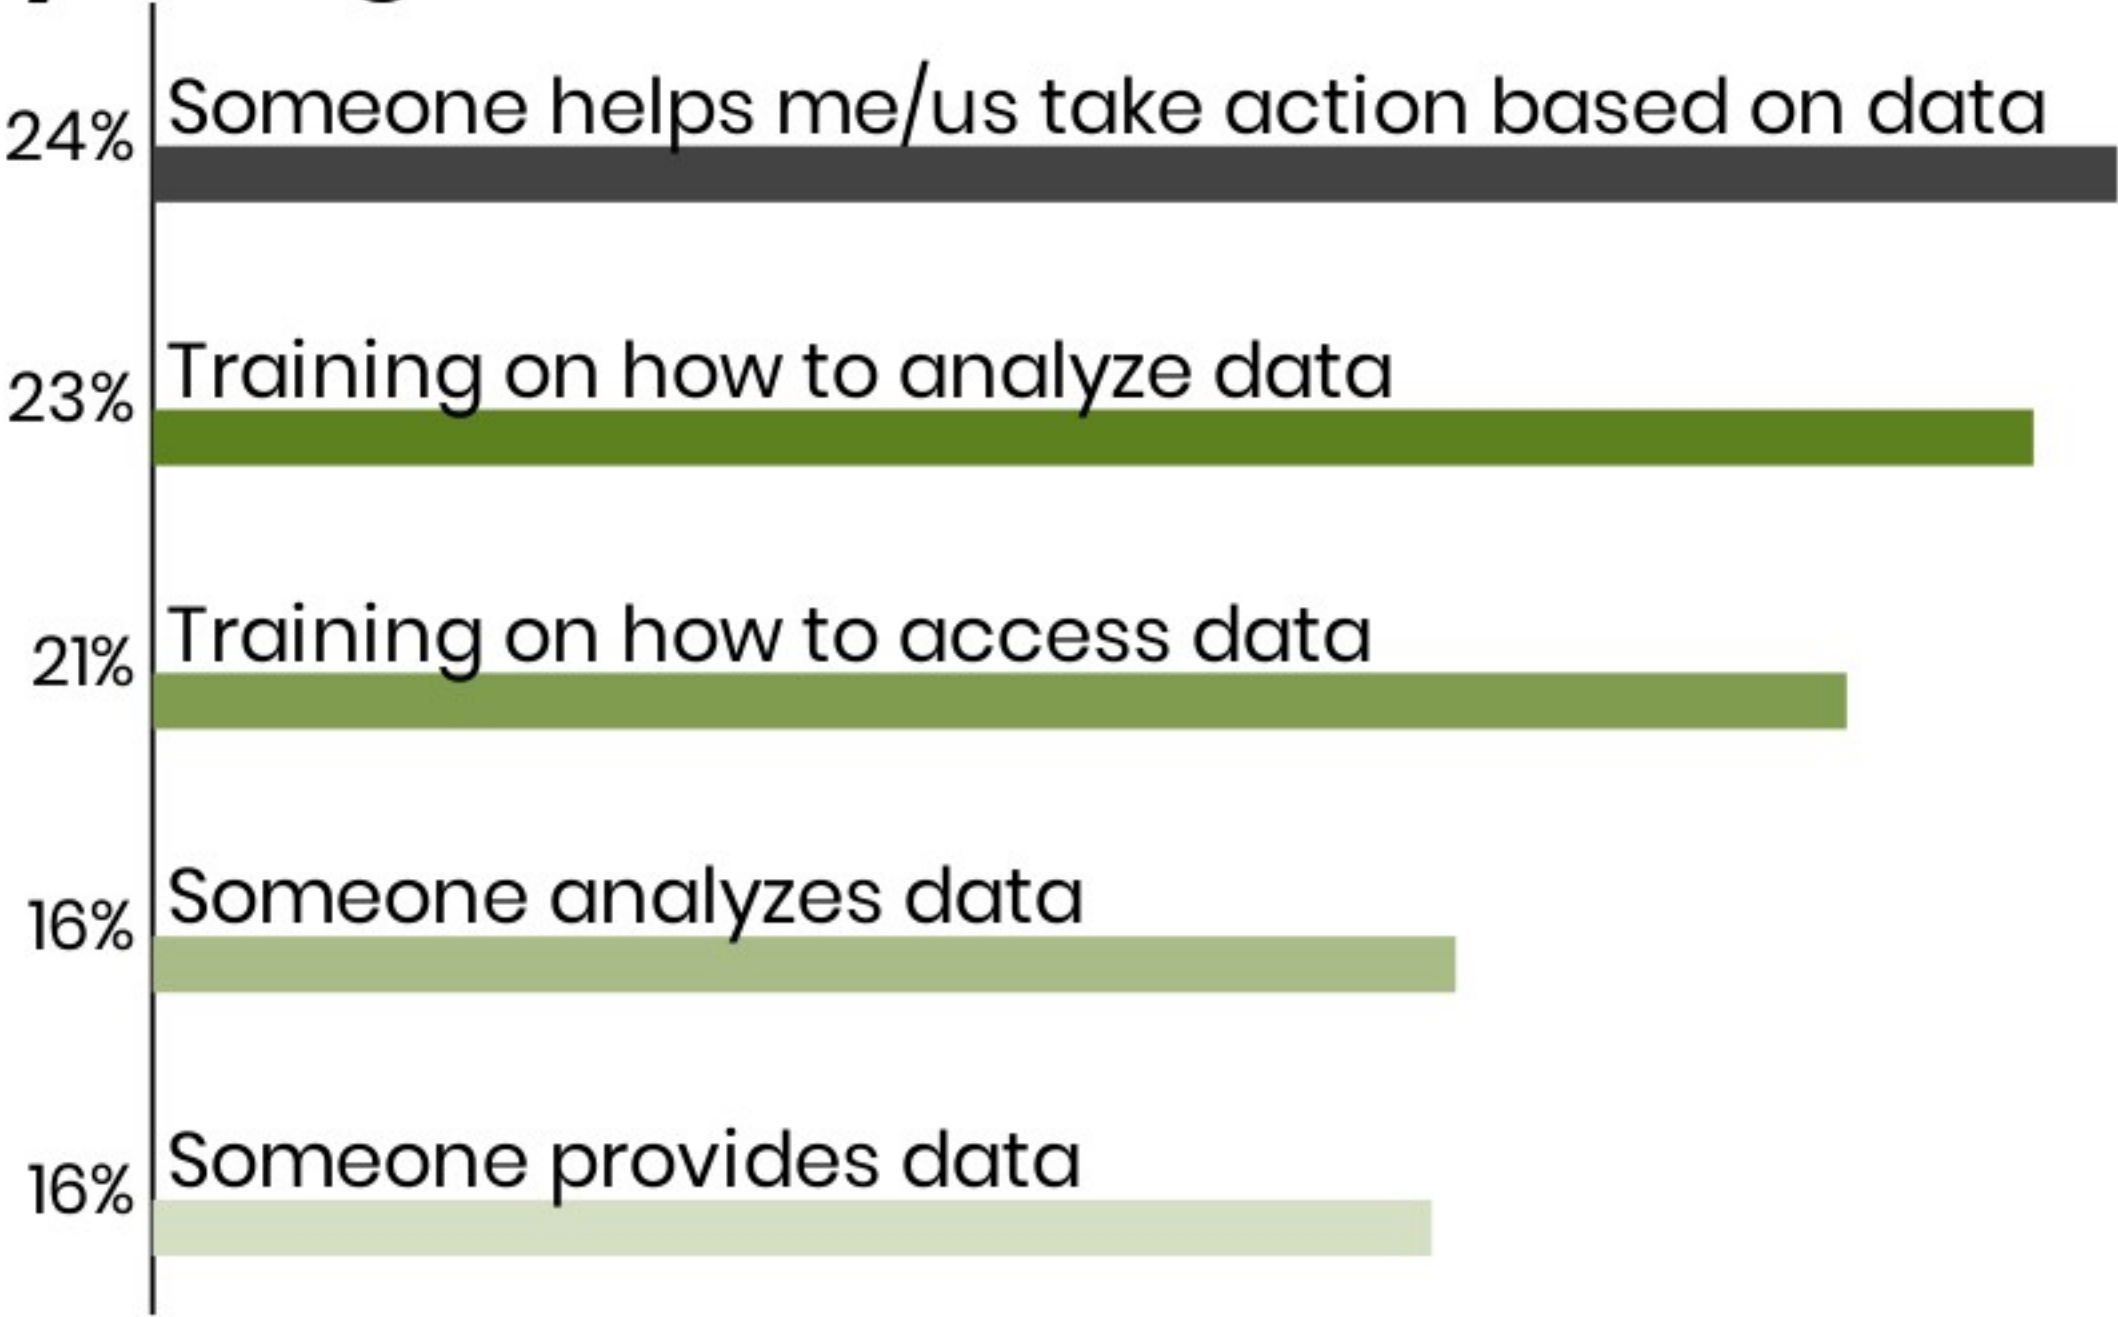

Where are you with using data to support student success?

What is your comfort with using data?

How would you prioritize support for more effectively using data?

Student Affairs and Underrepresented Student Data/Programming Q&A.

You guys do great work!
Keep it up.

Find ways of connecting academic advisors to work closely with the Cultural Centers

Student success is also holistically supporting all aspects of students' lives that support their personal, professional, and academic growth.

What are the ways academic affairs and student affairs can be more collaborative in supporting student success?

How can PSU support
and/or expand on the incredible work that is being done via these programs?

What are some ways we can approach a student who may need support? What tips can be shared with faculty and staff ?

How can support student affairs professionals
to measure the impact of cultural/identity
centers on retention and student success?

The academic success initiative for students living in university housing is great. Is PSU trying to reach off campus students in the same way?

Student success is helping students meet their goals.

Student Affairs and Underrepresented Student Data/Programming Q&A.

Can we require faculty to have mental health training to help their students?

Require first year students to live on campus. On campus living is a place for creating community and a sense of belonging already. Once that sense of belonging is established, it continues even when they move off campus and graduate (good alums!)

Want to increase student participation at these events? Consider hosting a symposium in Week 3 as opposed to Week 8.

Ho

Academic and cultural supports for international students are not linked to other multilingual and identity based support services. We should partner and create more synergy!!!
