1. Think about a required research project from your high school, college or graduate school experience (i.e., sometime in the past) that was impactful because you actually learned something or still remember what your argument was.

Prompts –

Write a few notes about the project, what prompted you to choose the topic, what spurred you to research that topic, or what or who influenced you as you explored that topic.

2. Please write the number in the box that most closely matches your current feeling. If you're interested in the longer version of this self-assessment, go to this link: <http://tinyurl.com/nw665xs>

	Almost Never	Sometimes	Often	Almost Always

When I learn something new, I like to find out more.
I find it fascinating to learn new information.
I enjoy exploring new ideas.
I enjoy trying different foods.
When I see new fabric, I want to touch and feel it.
I like to discover new places to go.
I wonder what other people's interests are.
I like going into houses to see how people live.
I figure out what others are feeling by looking at them.
