. REVIEW OF TRI-MET BLUE RIBBON COMMITTEE ACTIVITIES - INFORMA- TIONAL.

Tri-Met has announced the formation of a Blue Ribbon Committee to examine the region's needs for transit service, the comparison of these needs to available resources and to develop funding recommendations. Tri-Met staff will be present to introduce the charge and intent of the Blue Ribbon Committee to JPACT. In addition, Hardy Myers, Chair of the Committee, will be present to share some of his objectives for the Committee and solicit JPACT's support and cooperation.

SUMMARY:

1. INTRODUCTION OF NEW JPACT MEMBERS

Chairman Waker introduced and welcomed three new members to JPACT, Commissioner Margaret Strachan (City of Portland), Councilor Ron Thom (Cities in Clackamas County), and Mayor Marvin Woidyla (Cities in Multnomah County).

2. PROPOSED I-205 LRT STUDY SCHEDULE AND ITS EFFECT ON OTHER STUDIES

Andy Cotugno reviewed the background preceding initiation of the proposed I-205 LRT study schedule and its effect on other LRT studies. At JPACT's December 13 meeting, action was taken to designate the I-205 corridor from Portland International Airport to the Clackamas Town Center as the next corridor to be examined under the Regional LRT Study work program.

A discussion followed on Tri-Met's Blue Ribbon Committee and the role it will assume. It will be the task of the Committee to look at previously adopted and proposed goals and assess them in terms of Tri-Met's revenue capabilities, make recommendations for modifications of those goals where deemed necessary, or recommend measures to address the revenue needs. The time frame for the analysis is within 90-120 days, with completion anticipated in early summer. Andy noted that preliminary engineering on the Westside corridor is being delayed until after that time. He further indicated that, based upon the amount of Metro staff time required for the Blue Ribbon Committee, other study schedules could be affected.

There was concern expressed by JPACT members over proceeding with any of the LRT studies until after the Blue Ribbon Committee finishes its analysis. Dick Pokornowski expressed Vancouver's concern for completion of the Bi-State analysis. Ed Hardt spoke of the project decisions around the Tualatin and Wilsonville areas that are pending completion of the Southwest Corridor Study.

Andy spoke of the priority placed on the RTP update and emphasized the Bi-State effort as a long-term commitment that needs to be fulfilled. He indicated that the Southwest Corridor scope is laid out over a full year, and that the bypass alternatives need to be defined by summer so that ODOT can move ahead. Andy asked for direction from JPACT on the kind of information and comments that should be directed to the Blue Ribbon Committee.

Bob Post stated that the Tri-Met Board has not backed away from the PE commitment on the Westside but has rather deferred until the Blue Ribbon Committee finishes its deliberations.

Rick Gustafson encouraged JPACT members to take some time to follow the efforts and discussion of the Blue Ribbon Committee on the future of light rail transit and its importance in the transportation system. He felt the Committee should be prepared to provide direction and to take a position as issues arise in terms of the best interests of the region.

After further discussion, there was general agreement that the studies proceed on the proposed schedule.

3. FY 85 and FY 84 UWP AMENDMENT FOR ADDITIONAL COMPUTER PURCHASE AND MID-YEAR PROGRAM ADJUSTMENTS

Andy explained that this resolution would add computer capacity that is needed to meet the needs of regional users since conversion from the UTPS system at DPA to the EMME-2 in-house system. He then reviewed the proposed funding adjustments and budget impact.

Action Taken: It was moved and seconded to recommend approval of Resolution No. 85-548 amending the FY 85 and FY 84 Unified Work Program to accommodate the travel-forecasting and model refinement needs as presented. Motion CARRIED unanimously.

4. INTERGOVERNMENTAL RESOURCE CENTER ADVISORY COMMITTEE OVERVIEW

Steve Siegel related that the Intergovernmental Resource Center's purpose is to serve member governments and should be regarded as a consortium. In his overview, he noted the scope of the Center to be threefold: regional studies, technical assistance, and the coordination of services. The program areas include: data services, transportation, development services, and criminal justice. An IRC Advisory Committee was formed to advise on budget and work programs in these areas.

Steve reported on measures pending before the Legislature dealing with mandatory dues. He also indicated the need for broadening involvement by member cities and options being considered to improve communications for same.

Rick Gustafson reported on the status of House Bill 2266. He indicated that testimony has been given in support of the 1¢-state/1¢-city/county state gas tax and associated weight-mile tax. He noted that industry was generally supportive but that the truckers favored spacing the tax for 1¢ in 1986 and 1¢ in 1987. He encouraged JPACT members to be supportive by contacting their representative by letter.

5. ADJOURNMENT

There being no further business, the meeting was adjourned.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Dick Feeney, 238-4990

The President of Tri-Met's Board of Directors, Gerard K. Drummond, has announced the members of a citizens' blue ribbon task force charged with advising the Board on the future direction of transit, including levels of service and funding alternatives. The approximate two dozen members of the panel will hold an initial meeting in March at a date to be announced later, Drummond said. Metro Councilor Hardy Myers has agreed to chair the panel, Drummond announced.

"It's time for us once again to look at the regional public transportation system, decide what course mass transit should take and how it should be funded," Drummond explained. The Tri-Met Board cannot act on these major decisions in a vacuum. We need the ideas and support of this community, Drummond explained.

Also, named to the Citizens' Advisory Committee on Mass Transit Policy were representatives of neighborhood associations, transit rider groups, business, labor and local government. The Committee will meet on a monthly basis to discuss its report to the Board which will be completed in six months. Those meetings will be open to the public and comments from individual citizens will be encouraged.

In naming the panel, Drummond pointed out changes which have taken place since the last citizens' evaluation of mass transit in the Portland region. "That was in 1977," Drummond said, "when business was booming and the region was growing. At that time, Tri-Met was receiving revenues far beyond its operations budget, and there was public pressure on the District to expand and take an aggressive posture.

Now, he added, things are quite the opposite: business is slowly coming out of two years of recession; growth has slowed; and revenues have been cut back to a bare trickle compared with the late 70's. "Before we move ahead into the 1990's, we have to take stock, and set new goals for the District." We cannot do that without the help of the community through this panel, Drummond declared.

CHARGE

To review the draft mission, goals and policies proposed for the District in light of:

- meeting community expectations for mass transit;
- satisfying various community user groups; and
- serving the needs of taxpayers.

To assess whether Tri-Met's future revenue projections are reasonable in light of expectations for community growth.

To determine if Tri-Met is able to adequately serve the needs of the community given the financial resources presently available to it.

And, if not, whether and to what amount additional financial resources should be made available to it and, finally, if additional revenue sources are required, to suggest a possible way that those resources could be made available.
