Workforce Development Network Resource Directory April 1998
Introduction

This resource directory was produced for the Workforce Development Network (WDN) by a group of graduate students in the Urban and Regional Planning masters program at Portland State University. The project team consisted of Kim Burnett, Ray Jackson, Britt Parrott, Matt Ransom, and Claire Smith. The information for the directory was collected through interviews with service providers identified by WDN and the Workforce Development Board.

The scope of the resource directory is limited to adult workforce development programs in Multnomah and Washington Counties, and does not include temporary-employment agencies or apprenticeship and pre-apprenticeship programs due to time and resource constraints. These programs, as well as programs for youth, are important components of workforce development services in the region and we recommend that they be inventoried and analyzed in the future.

The resource directory is one part of a larger study on workforce development in the region. In addition to the directory, an analysis of the region's workforce development services is provided in a companion document titled, "Putting the Region to Work: An Analysis of Workforce Development Services in Multnomah and Washington Counties." The report is available from the Workforce Development Network.

The information provided in this directory was gathered during individual interviews with members of each organization between January and March 1998. Every effort was made to identify workforce development service programs for inclusion in the resource directory and for the analysis. Each provider had the opportunity to review the data prior to publication. If changes become necessary, please contact the WDN office (249-8004). This resource directory was compiled in a database and can be updated periodically.

Each organization was interviewed using a pre-determined list of questions and categories of answers in order to ensure accuracy and consistency. Not all data is provided for every organization due to varying levels of data collection conducted by each organization. The numbers provided for placements may be estimates in some cases.

For the lists of pre-employment services, training, job placement and retention, and support services, only primary services were included in the directory. Many of the organizations interviewed do more than just workforce development. Due to a wide variety in organizations interviewed, the number of employees listed may be for the whole organization rather than just those who focus on workforce development.

We would like to thank everyone who participated for taking time out of their busy schedules to provide us with information about their programs. We would especially like to thank Danielle Salus and Mimi Maduro for their input and feedback; our professors, Deborah Howe and Connie Ozawa, for their guidance; and Ethan Seltzer and Mary King for their insights.

Regional Boundaries

Region 2 refers to Washington and Multnomah Counties. The Portland Metropolitan region consists of Region 2 plus Clackamas, Yamhill, and Columbia Counties in Oregon and Clark County in Washington. Some organizations may serve all or part of that area, depending on their capacity and funding.

Description of Types of Workforce Service Providers Listed in the Directory:

One Stop Career Centers are collaborations of workforce service providers offering access to a broad network of employment, training and education programs, labor exchange functions, employment services, vocational rehabilitation and adult education. The core principles of one stop career centers are: universality, customer choice, integration and accountability.

Community Based Organizations and Community Development Corporations (CBOs/CDCs) are organizations that serve particular geographic communities or constituencies and are 501c3 tax-exempt.

Community College Programs include any service that is based out of or run by a community college.

Employer Brokering programs work directly with employers to recruit potential employees.

Federal, State, and County programs receive federal, state, or county funds and serve specific clients based on eligibility requirements.
Glossary of Services
