04	06	1890	Development	Pioneer Sq.	"The long awaited [Portland Hotel] hostelry is opened for the first time for a reception for its 300 Portland investors. Carriages pull into the circular drive, as Portlanders admire the massive four million brick structure with its slate roof and many chimneys. The city of 17,500 was still skeptical that such an edifice was needed. By the time the structure was completed, its owners had spent over $1,000,000 on the structure and another $150,000 for furnishings." Old Portland Times April 4, 1984
04	07	1890	Development	Pioneer Sq.	Guests register for the first night in the new 326 room Portland Hotel. Two elevators in the massive lobby take them to their rooms. There is a reading room and an observation room in a seventh floor tower. A well in the basement supplies water. The hotel has its own ice-making mechanism. Most of the rooms are equipped with fireplaces, and both electric and gas lights provide illumination." Old Portland Times, April 4, 1984.

		43	Development	Pioneer Sq.	"Servicemen arriving in the City are sleeping in the Portland Hotel's crowded lobby, and patronizing the 'basement bar.' They admire the bronze frieze that depicts local history. Eleanor Roosevelt stays at the hotel during her visits to the city and becomes a favorite with the staff, many of whom are black. Local leaders are part of the 'round table' that would meet for 24 years." Old Portland Times April 4, 1984
