

2004 LISTINGS FOR FUNGI, LICHENS, AND BRYOPHYTES

Oregon Natural Heritage Information Center

Notations in ranks: G = global, H = historic record, Q = identity questionable, S = state, T = subspecific rank, U = unknown

Notations in ORNHIC lists: C = too common, EX = extirpated, T = taxonomic problems

The 2004 list of rare nonvascular plants and fungi includes updates resulting from review and ranking of the Northwest Forest Plan's "Survey and Manage" taxa, completed by various taxonomic experts between 2001 and 2004. A number of taxa were upgraded from List 3 to Lists 1 and 2, while others were added to or dropped from the list. The Northwest Forest Plan is directly responsible for the great increase in field inventory and expertise for all nonvascular taxa, and new state records are being found every year by a growing number of sharp-eyed and well-informed observers.

People who have contributed directly or indirectly to the 2004 list include the following names, some of whom provided commentary on more than one taxonomic group:

Joseph Ammirati, Francisco Camacho, Michael Castellano, Efren Cazares, John Christy, Cathy Cripps, John Davis, William Denison, Dennis Desjardin, Rick Dewey, Tina Driesbach, Teman Erhart, Robert Fogel, Linda Geiser, Katie Glew, Doug Goldenberg, Trevor Goward, Judith Harpel, Martin Hutten, Judy Kaltenecker, David Largent, Janet Lindgren, Scot Loring, Dan Luoma, Bruce McCune, Orson Miller, Steve Miller, Mark Mousseaux, Clayton Newberry, Lorelei Norvell, Tom O'Dell, Eric Peterson, Scott Redhead, Bruce Rittenhouse, Judy Roger, Roger Rosentreter, Andrea Ruchty, Wilfred Schofield, Joan Seevers, Michelle Seidl, Jim Shevock, Joseph Spatafora, Jennie Sperling, Daphne Stone, Jim Trappe, David Wagner, Nancy Weber, and Marcia Wicklow-Howard.