Letter from Margaret Strachan

Margaret Strachan
March 1, 1984

Dear Friends:

Last month, the Portland City Council launched a major City initiative of interest to all citizens. The Council created a Committee, which I chair, to develop a formal proposal for a Central City Plan for the downtown area and adjoining commercial, industrial and residential districts.

The charge to the Committee is to create, by May 1, 1984, an overall process and first-year budget for the Central City planning effort. This major undertaking could well take up to three years to complete, and will involve many City bureaus, citizens groups, neighborhoods and other governmental agencies.

No process can be developed in a vacuum. To date we have discussed the Central City Plan concept with more than 200 citizens and dozens of neighborhood and community organizations. To develop this proposal properly, the Central City Pre-Planning Committee will need the input of many others over the next two months.

I have enclosed a synopsis of the Central City Plan and a copy of Council Resolution 33592. The synopsis includes a schedule of future Committee meetings, which the public is invited to attend, as well as two public hearings which the Committee will hold on April 16 and April 17, 1984.

On behalf of the Committee, I hope that you will take the time to monitor our work and to testify at one of the two public hearings. After the Committee's work is completed, our recommendations will be passed on to the City Council for further hearing and Council action.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact Dean Smith on my staff, 248-4151.

Sincerely,

Margaret D. Strachan

SYNOPSIS

CENTRAL CITY PLAN PROPOSAL

I. Purpose

Preparation of a Central City Plan and update of the Downtown Plan, to include the Downtown, Northwest Triangle, Coliseum-Lloyd Center, Central Eastside and Macadam Corridor areas.

To develop a vision for the Central City, augmented by appropriate policies for land use, transportation, commercial/industrial/retail development, employment, housing, social services, environmental quality, river use and access, recreation and cultural amenities along with implementing tools to support the vision.

II. Organization

Coordinated planning effort among numerous City bureaus, under a planning process coordinated by a Central City Plan unit within the Bureau of Planning, as outlined by Council Resolution 33592. A three-year planning effort envisioned.

A Pre-Planning Committee, chaired by Commissioner Margaret D. Strachan, will assist in the development of a specific management plan and process, work program, budget and timeline for the planning effort so that the City Council can consider the matter as early as May 1, 1984. The Committee will later become a Management Committee to monitor the work program, help coordinate it and report to Council on the subsequent work plans and budget needs of the Central City Plan.

A broad-based Citizens Advisory Committee, augmented by working subcommittees, will help devise a significant citizens' input process and a Vision Statement for the Central City. The CAC will review work elements and policies that evolve from the planning process.

A Technical Advisory Committee of Bureau heads, chaired by the Director of the Bureau of Planning, will provide on-going technical expertise, coordination and direction to the multi-bureau planning project.

III. Justification

Many of the goals and objectives of the Downtown Plan have been implemented, and the development agenda foreseen by the Plan has largely been accomplished. Separate planning and development initiatives which have been undertaken for the remainder of the Central City need coordination and guidance from an overall vision for the Central City.
Each area of the Central City is an interdependent district, but each area also has its own unique mission and role. Public policy should recognize this and be based on a coordinated Central City planning process.

Many changes have taken place in the economic conditions, market forces and technological characteristics of business and commerce in the Central City over the past decade. It is necessary for the City to modify and update its previous planning and public policy to reflect these new challenges.

IV. Key Features

A pre-planning phase began upon adoption by Council of a Central City Plan Resolution on January 18, 1984. The pre-planning phase is overseen by the Pre-Planning Committee, which has hired consultants to prepare an overall management plan and a first-year budget package.

The Pre-Planning Committee will work with the consultants to prepare a timeline, process, budget, management plan, boundaries and scope of study for the Central City Plan. The Technical Advisory Committee, consisting of directors of the major City bureaus and offices with key responsibilities over issues of Central City Plan concern, will be formed once the planning phase begins to provide additional technical oversight and coordination.

A Citizens Advisory Committee will develop a "vision" for the Central City, help develop a citizens' input process and review and approve the planning products prior to Planning Commission review and Council adoption.

V. Public Participation

It is envisioned that the pre-planning process will result in a detailed proposal for Council consideration no later than May 1, 1984. Opportunities for public review and comment in the pre-planning work will be provided by the Pre-Planning Committee and in hearings before the City Council.

The Pre-Planning Committee will hold two public hearings in April to receive public comments on draft proposals for the Central City Plan process and budget. The hearings will be at 7 p.m., Monday, April 16, at Benson High School and 7 p.m., Tuesday, April 17, in Hearing Room C of the Portland Building.

Committee meetings also are open to the public. The meeting schedule is:

March 7, 5 p.m., Room 154, City Hall
March 16, 3 p.m., Room 154, City Hall
April 3, 5:30 p.m., Room 154 City Hall
April 24, 5 p.m., Room 154, City Hall
April 30, 5 p.m., Room 154, City Hall

WHEREAS, such a study and planning effort for the Central City will require a significant investment of time, planning expertise and public resources; and

WHEREAS, the planning, implementing and service delivery functions of City government are divided among numerous bureaus and all five Commissioners; and

WHEREAS, an oversight and coordination team of bureau managers with significant roles in planning and implementation is the best vehicle to provide internal coordination, communication and monitoring of the planning process and work products, and to recommend an appropriate budget; and
