"RAJNEESHPURAM"

Some disciples of an Indian mystic named Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh moved to rural Wasco County last July, and Wasco County hasn't been the same since.

The disciples wear red clothing and a pendant photograph of their Master, are vegetarians who intend to farm an overgrazed ranch, and are universally devoted to a Bhagwan who makes no public appearances.

Curiosity and rumors heightened when the disciples petitioned to incorporate a city, Rajneeshpuram, on a portion of their 64,229-acre ranch. An order authorizing an election next May has been appealed.

Mary Catherine (Pedersen), who became a disciple after visiting the original commune in India, formerly was coordinator of Portland's Office of Neighborhood Associations and a member of the City Club.
